RATIFICATION BILL PENDING

"SUNDAY HERALD" SPECIAL

Paris, Yesterday.
M. Beranger, chairman of the Foreign Affairs Committee of the Senate, is reported to have had a conversation yesterday with M. Flandin, when the whole foreign political situation was reviewed, especially the forthcoming negotiations in Geneva and the procedure to be adopted in the Senate in connection with the debate on the ratification of the Franco-Soviet Pact.

The Foreign Affairs Committee then discussed M. Beranger's report fully, the chairman stating which were the most important diplomatic documents that had been exchanged before the Soviet Pact was signed. M. Laval, the former Premier and Foreign Minister, gave a resume of the negotiations which in part he himself conducted.

ARTICLE BY ARTICLE

The Foreign Affairs Committee decided that the pact should be discussed article by article after the rapporteur, to be appointed on Monday, had furnished his statement. It is thought probable that the ratification bill will be submitted to the Senate on Tuesday, and the possibility is envisaged that the general debate in the Senate will take place on March 12.

EMIGRATION TO AUSTRALIA

QUESTION STILL PREMATURE

PREMIER'S STATEMENT

Canberra, Yesterday.
Mr. J. A. Lyons, Premier of Australia, made a further statement in connection with emigration to Australia to-day. He stated that the Government will not propose any immigration schemes for the present and any mission from Britain dealing with the question of immigration will be regarded as premature. Should they come to Australia it will be to obtain information on the question. Any discussions on the subject can be held by the British Government with the Attorney-General of Australia, who is going to England shortly. —

PREMIER'S RESIGNATION NOT ACCEPTED EIGHTEEN RINGLEADERS OF REVOLT COMMIT HARA-KIRI

REBELS SURRENDER AND ARE DISARMED

Tokyo, Yesterday.

The Cabinet announces that Admiral Okada, the Premier, who had been previously reported killed, has been found alive.

From the rather confused details available it appears that the mutineers on Wednesday morning killed Admiral Okada's brother-in-law, the retired Colonel Denzo Matsui, who somewhat resembled Admiral Okada.

Admiral Okada was actually at the official residence and was able to remain hidden in it till the following day, when he was able to escape.

Admiral Okada yesterday afternoon tendered his resignation from the Premiership to the Throne through the acting Premier, Mr. Goto. The Emperor refused his resignation, so Admiral Okada is still Premier. Yesterday evening he went to the Palace and paid his respects to the Emperor, and expressed his sincere regrets at the imbroglio.

The Cabinet announces that Mr. Goto has been relieved of the Acting Premiership.

Tokyo: Eighteen of the ringleaders of the uprising committed hara-kiri on the collapse of the rebellion.

The penultimate act of the drama was a broadcast appeal by General Kashi to the rebels, which ran: "Soldiers! The Emperor commands you to return to barracks. We admire your courage and loyalty to your officers, but you can submit without shame, because your officers have recognised their error."

EARLIER MESSAGES

Singapore: A despatch from the Foreign Office at Tokyo, received here, confirms that orders have been given to evict the rebels.

500 DEFIANT

Shanghai, later: Aeroplanes this morning flew over the rebels, dropping leaflets urging them to surrender, after which General Kashi's troops began their advance. The rebels capitulated, apparently without fighting. It is stated that the number had already dwindled to about 500, as small groups gave up last night.

CAPITULATION EXPECTED

Later: The Japanese Embassy announces that two buildings, the Premier's residence and the Sanno Hotel, were still being held by a handful of rebels at noon, but capitulation was expected at any moment.

ORDER FROM EMPEROR

Shanghai: The troops responsible for martial law under General Kashi have been instructed to evict the rebels, at the personal order of the Emperor. However, it is understood that the action has been delayed in order to give them a last chance of peaceful evacuation.

Later: All the rebels surrendered at 11.30, according to a Japanese Embassy spokesman. —

SINO-JAPANESE RELATIONS

To Be Readjusted In Near Future

Shanghai, Yesterday.
It is learned that Mr. Hashiro Arita, the new Japanese Ambassador to China, will proceed to Nanjing to present his credentials, according to semi-official circles. The work of the readjustment of Sino-Japanese relations will be taken up immediately after he assumes his post, the report emphasised. —

Consulate

COMMANDER OF ORDER OF
DRAGON OF ANNAM

A small and distinguished party were present last night at the dinner given at the French consular residence, preparatory to the investiture of Sir Robert Ho Tung with the Order of Commander of the Dragon of Annam by Vice-Admiral J. P. Esteva, Commander-in-Chief of the French naval forces in the Far East.

It was a very intimate affair, those present, besides the host and hostess, M. and Mme. Leurquin, Admiral Esteva and Sir Robert Ho Tung being Lady Ho Tung, Mrs. Robert Ho Tung Jr., Capt. Bastard, commanding the Admiral's flagship, the Lamotte-Plequet, Capt. Bros and Comdr. Jouin, of the Lamotte-Plequet, the Admiral's Chief of Staff, Capt. Leloup, Comdr. Grange, of the Staff, and Capt. Cros, A.D.C., M. Renner, Assistant Consul, and Mme. Renner, and M. Montet, brother-in-law of M. Leurquin, with Mme. Montet. —

GIANT MACHINES FOR EMPIRE SERVICE

London, Yesterday.
Imperial Airways are building a new type of machine for the empire service, and one who visited Rochester where the machines are being built stated that these new giant machines will be four-engined, and the number being built is 20. The first will be finished and put into service on April 1, and at the beginning of next year all the machines at present used on the empire routes will be replaced by the new machines.

ELABORATE ACCOMMODATION
The South Atlantic route will be weekly, taking 4½ days, and the Indian route will be bi-weekly, taking 2½ days. There will be 10 services crossing the Mediterranean. —

TWO PEOPLE KILLED

"SUNDAY HERALD" SPECIAL

Damascus, Yesterday.
Another episode indicative of the tension that continues to prevail at Damascus took place last night, when a number of worshippers were leaving the Omajaden Mosque after evening prayers, when someone threw a stone at a cyclist.

Instantly street fighting broke out, the police being pelted with stones and responding by firing on the crowd, two persons being killed and nine wounded. The worshippers were, however, ultimately forced back into the mosque, where they were locked up by the police.

A delegation of party leaders waited on the Premier yesterday to notify him that several of their number intended to go to Paris to negotiate with the French Government. —

Victorious Drive To The South

ENTHUSIASM IN ROME

"SUNDAY HERALD" SPECIAL

Rome, Yesterday.
In a victorious drive southwards, the Italian troops succeeded in capturing the towering ramparts of the 11,000-foot high Amba Alagi mountains, 25 miles south of Amba Aladam, which is regarded as one of the most important key positions on the roads to Dessie.

According to the official communique issued here yesterday afternoon, the troops of Marshal Badoglio's First Army Corps have captured Amba Alagi, adding that "since 11 o'clock on Friday morning the Italian flag has waved on the summit of this mountain, which witnessed the heroic death of Fosselli and his men."

Fosselli was commander of the Italian detachment which held Amba Alagi in the Abyssinian campaign of 1896, but was finally annihilated by the superior forces of the Abyssinians belonging to Negus Menelik II's army.

NEW IMPORTANT PHASE

Rome: The news of the capture of the Amba Alagi mountains by the army of Marshal Badoglio was received with the utmost enthusiasm throughout the country, it being generally anticipated that this victory marks the beginning of a new important phase in the East African campaign.

Enormous jubilant crowds moved through the streets until the early hours of this morning, shouting: "Viva il Duce; Viva Badoglio!" and singing the "Giovinezza." The Piazza Venezia, the square in front of Signor Mussolini's residence, was beleaguered by a multitude which never tired of cheering the Duce. —

LEAGUE POLICY ON SANCTIONS

Negus Hopes For
Intensification

"SUNDAY HERALD" SPECIAL

Dessie, Yesterday.
In a statement made before foreign press representatives here, the Negus expressed the hope that the Committee of Eighteen, which is meeting at Geneva on Monday, would decide to intensify the sanctions against Italy.

The Negus declared that the military situation was relatively favourable. The Army was now well equipped and provisioned, since the initial difficulties had been definitely overcome.

ITALY TAKES STEPS

Rome: A further attempt to defeat the sanctions has been made by the Government, by a decree making an admixture of 20 per cent alcohol to all petrol used compulsory.

The Government justifies this measure by saying that foreign fuel should be replaced as far as possible by home products, and that this is a precautionary measure against the impending oil embargo. —

Chilean Ex-Officers
Frustrated

"SUNDAY HERALD" SPECIAL

Santiago de Brasil, Yesterday.

A coup d'etat planned by former officers of the Chilean army and the police force has been narrowly averted, thanks to the watchfulness of the authorities.

The authorities received a warning in time to arrest 22 of the main leaders, so that the planned revolt could be nip in the bud. —

THE BUTT

By WILFRID ROBERTSON

CINZA was frightened and hungry, as a week-old oribi antelope is bound to be that has not seen its mother for thirty hours. But the delicately-formed little creature still crouched obediently where he had been left beneath the mimosa bush that shaded him from the burning African sun. His twitching nose and sensitive ears strained anxiously for the first sign of his mother returning, not knowing she would never come again, having fallen a victim on the previous night to the claws of a prowling and hungry leopard.

Cinza started. Footsteps were approaching through the dry, three-foot grass. The wind brought to him strange and terrifying scents—the smell of humans. Closer he crouched in the shade, his soft eyes wide with the instinctive fright that filled him.

He saw them—the strange creatures that walked on two legs. One of them was white of face, with a sun helmet on his head, and carrying a rifle; the two others were black, and bore knobsticks in their hands.

Had Cinza remained quiet they would have passed without seeing him. But his nerve gave way. With a pathetic bleat of terror he got to his little legs and tried to run, stumbling over the stout stems of fallen grass. The men stopped and turned at the sound. One of the black men jumped forward, with upraised knobstick; in another moment Cinza's life would have been dashed from him.

But the white man acted. Giving vent to a sharp exclamation, he struck out with his flat, sending Mubi, the native, staggering. Quickly he bent and caught up the baby antelope, and held it to his shirt. Cinza bleated despairingly; but presently he began to realise that the stroking of the rough but kindly hands meant him no harm.

In infancy memories are short. Cinza settled down almost at once to his new life on the Rhodesian farm belonging to Rogers, the man who had picked him up. In a few days he had learned to drink from a saucer instead of sucking a milky rag held between Roger's sunburned fingers and to sleep quietly at night in a grass-filled box at the foot of his owner's bed. Cinza grew rapidly. His coat took upon it the smooth orange shade of maturity, and his little horns began to sprout. Within a few months he had grown from a baby, little larger than a kitten, to a full-sized oribi standing thirty inches at the shoulder, and carrying on his head a pair of four-inch horns, straight and sharp as needles.

With his development appeared also a propensity for mischief, which made Rogers contemplate more than once the advisability of getting rid of him.

Neighbouring white men had also reason to revile Cinza. In a country where everyone wore shorts it was distinctly disconcerting to be jabbed suddenly in the back of the bare knees by a playful, butt of Cinza's exceedingly sharp horns.

Rogers managed to break Cinza of damaging his clothes and upsetting his tableware; but that habit of slyly attacking people from behind was more difficult to eradicate.

At first the natives on the property shook their heads over the white man's pet.

But as the days passed they became more reconciled to his presence and to seeing his dainty form as he wandered about the veranda of the rough bungalow, and even as far afield as the native quarters at the back.

All except Mubi, that is—the native who had tried to kill Cinza when he was found. Mubi hated him, partly as the cause of the stinging blow he had received, and partly because Mubi hated everything. He was a sullen savage, black as ink, and clothed usually in a worn-out sack; he never had any money, for he gambled away every penny he earned, and his continual penury was another cause of complaint against the world in general.

And that dislike was reciprocal. Cinza disliked Mubi intensely, and did all he could to annoy the man if it was safe to do so. He ate Mubi's porridge if the native left it on the ground for a moment to cool, and he butted him whenever there was a chance and a clear road for a quick getaway.

Mubi replied by lurid threats and curses and by many a stone flung savagely, and more than one spear. But Cinza knew how to look after himself.

Being now full-grown, Cinza no longer slept in a box in his master's bedroom; his quarters were in an outhouse half-way between the bungalow and the native compound.

It was the duty of the cook boy to shut him up each night at sundown; but Cinza had other ideas. The instinct of the wild was strong in him, and it irked him to be imprisoned when the moon was shining, and when there were so many interesting sights and sounds at night.

On one night Cinza was out. The cook had given up in despair the task of rounding him up, and had gone to the native quarters. Presently Cinza also drifted in that direction.

Round one of the fires squatted Mubi and several companions. In their hands were greasy playing-cards; and scattered around them on the ground were all the sevens, eights, and nines from the pack—for no native will gamble before these "unlucky" cards are removed.

From the obscuring darkness Cinza watched the players. His enemy, Mubi, was scowling, and throwing down card after card with exclamations of annoyance. He was, as usual, losing heavily, and every minute that passed plunged him deeper in debt.

At length the party broke up, and one by one the natives retired to their huts to sleep. All except Mubi. He sat on by the dying fire, a savage scowl on his ugly face.

The man's thoughts were not pleasant ones. He owed more than he could ever hope to pay. He must clear out, and at once; and the Portuguese border was not far away. Once over that he would be safe. But he must have money before he sought a new land. His thoughts turned again to the wages-money he knew Rogers kept in a trunk beneath his bed.

Mubi rose silently, drew a long knife from his belt, and felt its edge. Holding it in his hand he moved stealthily towards the bungalow that loomed black in the moonlight. Cinza watched him and, prompted by curiosity, followed.

Cinza mounted the verandah and looked into the open door of his master's room. The moonlight streamed into it, making the interior visible. Rogers lay on the bed, asleep; and moving silently towards him was Mubi.

Mubi bent and touched the trunk. Rogers stirred slightly in his sleep. Mubi started, and with a silent snarl raised the knife he held.

Mubi's back was towards Cinza, and the man seemed quite preoccupied. Cinza saw those bare black legs—a heaven-sent opportunity for another dig at the man he disliked. Swift as a bullet he made a dash, and the sharp horn-points stabbed deep in the backs of Mubi's knees.

Mubi yelled and spun round. Rogers jumped to wakefulness and

ANOTHER RECORD FOR FORD V-8

New York-Vancouver In Five Days

AN ENTERPRISING PARSON'S REMARKABLE FEAT

Residents of Vancouver, British Columbia, were astounded, exactly one week after the introduction of the new 1936 Ford V-8, by the appearance in Vancouver of a 1936 Ford bearing an Ohio license-plate.

The car was driven by the Rev. J. V. Wishart, of Sandusky, Ohio, who had just travelled 3,265 miles from Buffalo, New York. Mrs. Wishart accompanied him. The Rev. Mr. Wishart is pastor of the Christian and Missionary Alliance Church and an evangelist whose work takes him from one end of the continent to the other, often on short notice. He demands a Ford V-8 for his travels.

So, on Saturday, October 19, when the new 1936 Ford V-8 was being announced for the first time, the Rev. Mr. Wishart was on the doorstep of the Buffalo, New York, assembly plant, and just as dealers all over the country were making their opening announcements and unveiling their new Fords, the Rev. Mr. Wishart drove out in his.

He spent the week-end in New York, where he finished a campaign, then set out Monday morning for Vancouver.

"I gave my new car the most gruelling five-day test an automobile could have and it came through with flying colours," he said. "Although I drove at a high rate of speed, I averaged 16-17 miles to the American gallon of gas."

took in the situation. Springing from the bed he struck, and Mubi measured his length on the ground, the knife spinning from his hand.

Cinza, meanwhile, dashed away gleefully. It had been the finest opportunity he had had to bring about Mubi's discomfiture.

But he wondered why he never saw his enemy again, and why his master fondled him more than usual next day, and even the mounted-police sergeant patted him commendingly.

JEWELS... of Old China

PIECES of their jewellery were almost the only personal relics to remind us of the women of Old China in the magnificent Chinese Exhibition recently held at Burlington House.

The great ladies of the T'ang Dynasty, an epoch which passed before the Conqueror came to England, wore pins headed with sprays of leaves done in fine gold work and studded with jewels which, when the pin was buried in the thick dark hair, stood out like fans.

Exquisitely Wrought Designs

If jewellery next year is influenced by this exhibition it will probably be by pieces of this type, as these simple, exquisitely wrought designs are the only ones which could be reproduced without months of work at enormous cost. For instance, the jewellery found in the tomb of the Chinese princess of the 17th or 18th century does include a hair band of milk-white jade enclosed in filigree and set with pearls which might easily be worn to-day, but the pins which ornamented her coiffure are far too ornate. Nearly every pinhead is a complete reproduction in gold filigree of a compact little scene featuring a tiny pagoda, with a background of trees, sometimes a small figure, and even occasionally what appears to be a galloping horse. One small ornament shows a dragon-headed horse carried out in what is apparently gold net; horns are on his tossing head, and his open mouth displays a tongue of ruby.

When ornaments of glass came in a few seasons ago they were hailed as something entirely new, but the Chinese wore glass beads and sleeve weights of gilt bronze inlaid with glass before the Christian era.

Personal
And Domestic Problems Solved

Dear Helen

All Enquiries will be Treated in Confidence

Dear Helen,

I am seriously in love with a girl who always accepts invitations and goes about with every Tom, Dick and Harry. I am of the jealous type and, of course, don't want to lose her. She knows I don't go out with girls and also that I love her. Don't you think it is unfair on her part, that she steps out while I don't? What should I do to keep her from stepping out?

"ANDY O"

Happy Valley.

I advise you to have a serious talk with this girl of yours and ask her straight out just how much she cares for you. If she will not commit herself as to her real feelings, make up your mind to leave her well alone for a few weeks, and go about yourself with other girls. That is usually the surest way to bring any woman to her senses! If, on the other hand, she admits she loves you, but wants a good time, you must firmly point out that you will not have it, and she must choose between you and this gay time of hers. But do not be too unreasonable. Perhaps she is very young, and then it is more understandable. There is surely no harm in her going out occasionally with a friend, so long as you feel you can trust her—but you must be able to feel that. Point out to her that there can be no lasting happiness for either of you if she would rather be going out with other people.

If she insists, against all your wishes, in accepting every invitation that comes along, be strong with yourself and have nothing more to do with her. Try and find a girl who is less selfish, for you would never find your happiness there.

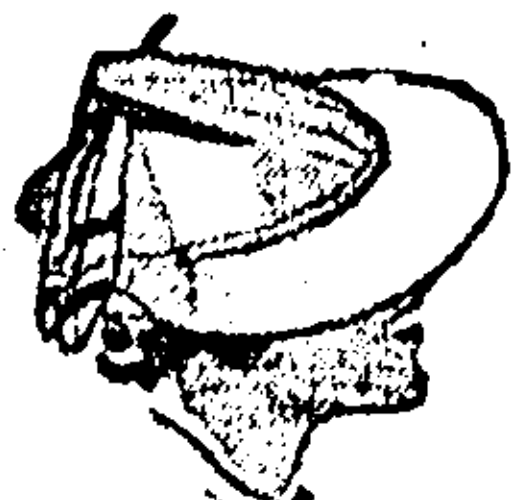

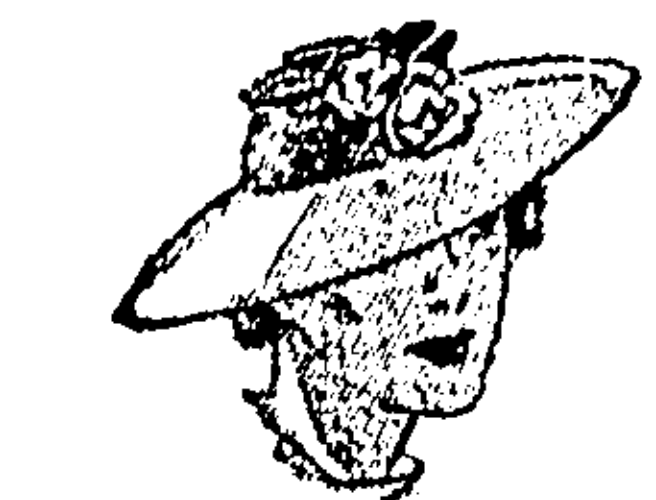

Spring Favorites

HEADS WIN ONCE AGAIN HATS LEAD THE MODE

PARIS has been for some time primly seasonable regarding her hats. Straw hats were put on only for Easter; felts for September. More and more, modistes have waited for the couture collections to indicate the trend in dress, before their big showings. But this season the Paris millinery mode reverts to independence once again. Straw hats are due to make an appearance early in January.

New head outlines are eclectic, to say the least. Their source of inspiration runs all the way from Flemish art to China and Japan; and the "surrealist line," launched in the midseason, has come to mean anything extraordinary or ultra-modern in head silhouette.

The Flemish art exhibition, including a variety of works from Jan Van Eyck to Peter Breughel the Elder, now at the Orangerie, has suggested many of the new hats, featured by Louise Bourbon, Marie Alphonsine and others. Louise Bourbon shows high toques of black felt, shaped like hennins, trimmed at the back with short coloured veils of marquisette or chiffon. One of these called "Sibylle Sambetha" is almost an exact copy of the hennin worn by Maria Forcell in the famous Memling portrait. The veil, instead of being white, however, is blue, a wonderful new powdery Nattier shade named "Flemish blue" by Louise Bourbon.

From The Flemish

OTHER hats of Flemish inspiration are berets or large turbans made of looped strips of felt or straw, shaped like the coiffures worn by Gerard David's "Holy Women."

To the millinery mode the Flemish portraits will bequeath new crowns that are of small circumference; they may be either flat or high. Such crowns are featured by Talbot, Agnes, Louise Bourbon and others. They show them with all sorts of brims. Some crowns are spool-shaped; others four-cornered; others are like truncated cones. They give an amusing but very unexpected aspect to the head, and are surprisingly becoming; however, to appreciate them, one must cast one's preconceived ideas of modern millinery to the winds.

Some new crowns fly to the other extreme—they are large, and as flat as pancakes. These are derived from the tam-crowned hats of the Medici, another important influence in Spring millinery. Agnes shows these beret crowns with little, rather soft, brims in her Mignon hats. Suzy gives pancake crowns to many of her little flat sailors. Berets are featured by Agnes, Reboux, Rose Valois, Suzy and others. They are forecast as big Spring successes. But when have they ever failed to be successes?

only advise: never be bored, be interested in even small things, pick up knowledge wherever you can, be natural always and avoid self-consciousness like the plague, talk to everyone, however dull, as though they interested you—and, what's more, be interested.

Consult Oculist

'WORRIED.—I am afraid I cannot help you. These things are governed by heredity and are no more subject to reasons than, say, the size or build of a person. I do not think you can do anything about it, but, in any case, where so delicate an organ as the eye is concerned, I can only advise you to consult an oculist.

FOR SMALL BATHROOMS

SMALL bathrooms that have limited space for hanging towels are the despair of hostesses. To overcome such restrictions they can get a chromium device on which to hang additional guest towels; this has two rods, arms which hook over the towel rod already there, and a bracket which holds them out from the wall. The width is adjustable. It may be folded and put away when not in use.

MILK RECIPES

Fillets Of Fish Steamed In Milk

LEMON sole or haddock is very good done this way and so easily digested. Especially good, therefore, when there is an invalid in the house.

The fillets should be as uniform as possible. Wet a pan and stand them, tightly rolled, on end in it. Season to taste and add milk in the proportion of half a pint to the pound of fish. Simmer for twenty minutes. Remove the fish, thicken the stock with a little cornflour and pour over the fish piled attractively on a hot dish. Sprinkle with coralline pepper and garnish with parsley.

Semolina And Cheese Rounds

These make a nice hot lunch or supper dish.

Ingredients.— $\frac{3}{4}$ pint milk, 2 tablespoonfuls semolina, walnut of butter, pepper and salt, 2 tablespoonfuls grated cheese, $\frac{1}{4}$ pint tinned milk.

Method.—Boil the milk, add the semolina, and allow to simmer for ten minutes. By this time the mixture should be thick enough to hold its shape. Take off the fire and add the butter, seasoning and cheese. Now spread about half an inch thick on a wet pan and, when cold, cut into rounds and arrange, overlapping, in two rows down the centre of a Pyrex pie dish. Sprinkle with grated cheese, pour the tinned milk over, and brown in a hot oven.

EVENING BAGS

EVENING bags, as well as those for very smart afternoon occasions are decorated enchantingly with jewelled initials. The "jewels," however, are by no means always expensive, because clever imitations are generally used.

Black velvet bags of flat shape may be trimmed with a monogram worked in seed pearls. Dark blue or ruby red velvet is ornamented in a similar manner; while black or white velvet bags often have initials carried out in tiny imitation emeralds, sapphires or rubies.

H.K. LADIES WIN

SCORE TWICE IN EXTRA TIME

Defence Responsible For Success

"Y" LADIES LOSE GRIP IN CLOSING STAGES

A thrilling ladies' hockey game was witnessed at Sookunpoo yesterday when the Hong Kong Ladies, former holders of the Caer Clark Cup, secured the Southern Cup for the runners-up position by defeating the "Y" Ladies by 4 goals to 2 after extra time had been called for, the teams sharing four goals after the first hour's play.

The Hong Kong Ladies' defence undoubtedly won the Southern Cup for them, and much of this credit must go to Mrs. Bell, who gave a brilliant display in the pivotal position, her positioning and anticipation being uncanny.

The "Y" defence, after a shaky start, soon settled down and Miss Fowler's clever display at back, backed up by equally good performances in the intermediate line by Miss Thomson and Mrs. Brown, had the desired effect on the H. K. Ladies' attack.

Unfortunate Lapse

Miss McCaw was very effective with her reverse-stick work in the first hour's play, but a mishap during extra time let through Miss Hance, who placed the issue beyond doubt.

The Hong Kong Ladies' attack was much improved on last week and they played as one, with Miss Smalley and Miss Hance outstanding.

With the left-wing partnership of Miss Adey and Miss Westcott rendered harmless by the splendid display of Miss Pope, the brunt of the "Y" Ladies' attack was thrust upon the leader, Mrs. Read, and the right-wing pair, the Misses O. and S. Dalziel, who worked like Trojans throughout.

Miss K. Ferguson opened the scoring for the H. K. Ladies in the first half, much against the run of the play, but Mrs. Read levelled the scores in the second half with a good goal. Soon after Miss O. Dalziel went through in a solo effort to score the best goal of the match to give the "Y" the lead, but just before the final whistle Miss H. Hance broke through to equalise.

Extra Time Decides Issue

The teams decided to play extra time and a quick change-over was made. Miss M. Smalley gave H. K. Ladies the lead a few minutes before the interval, following several fruitless breakaways on the part of Miss Adey and Mrs. Read. In the second half Miss Hance placed the issue beyond doubt with a splendid goal, dribbling through from almost the half-way mark.

Mr. A. E. P. Guest and Mr. R. Austin umpired and the teams were:

H.K. Ladies:—Mrs. J. Lumsden; Miss E. M. Gray (Capt.) and Miss J. Smalley; Miss B. Pope, Mrs. M. Bell and Miss E. Hobling; Miss F. Marry, Miss J. Dalziel, Miss M. E. P. Smalley, Miss H. Hance and Miss K. Ferguson.

"Y" Ladies:—Miss J. Weller; Miss P. McCaw and Miss A. Fowler; Miss M. Gardiner, Miss E. Thomson and Mrs. Brown; Miss O. Dalziel, Miss S. Dalziel, Mrs. M. Read, Miss J. Adey and Miss M. Westcott.

KOWLOON SURPRISE EAST LANCs.

TWO GOALS BY KNOX DECIDE ISSUE

BOYD IN GREAT FORM

VERY strenuous but unimpressive football was witnessed at Sookunpoo yesterday, between the East Lancs. and Kowloon in their premier division soccer clash, the latter team gaining the victory by the odd goal in three.

The Kowloon win was largely due to Boyes, in goal. He played a brilliant game throughout, clearing, at times, shots seeming almost impossible to save, while D. Knox, at centre-forward, played hard and constructive football, being responsible for both the Kowloon goals.

After 20 minutes of strenuous play Sandford opened the scoring for the soldiers, following a short melee in front of goal, and the first half ended with the soldiers leading by the only goal.

On the resumption the soldiers again attacked, but were quickly repulsed by the Kowloon halves, Kemp, Bliss and Boyd, and within five minutes D. Knox equalised with a splendid shot from 15 yards.

The Kowloon forwards had now improved their passing immensely and it was the soldiers' turn to be on the defence. Harmanworth almost gave a goal away from a shot by V. White, but he managed to clear on the ground, redeeming himself a few minutes afterwards with a brilliant save.

During this half the soldiers neglected to swing the ball about, preferring short passing which, in the circumstances, proved fruitless. Some changes in positioning, Sandford to centre-forward, and Mather to inside right, failed to produce any marked improvement or scoring. In fact, within five minutes of this change D. Knox, grasping an opportunity managed to force the ball past Harmanworth after a scramble in the goalmouth to place Kowloon in the lead.

Eckersley, following a collision in midfield retired with a head injury, and he was very much missed during the latter stages of the game, Kowloon following up attack after attack, their halves giving nothing away in their defending tactics, and feeding their forwards well.

The following are to-day's teams and reserves:—

Probables (In Whites):—A. B. Owens (Navy) and U. B. Souza (Radio); A. E. P. Guest (Radio) and Pte. Cox (Army); Lt. J. P. Williams (Army); W. A. Reed (Club) and Alf Din (Army); Lt. E. Robinson (Army); Sarnagat Singh (Radio); Awlar Singh (K.I.T.C.); D. Carey (Club) and Pte. Nolan (Army).

Possibles (In Colours):—Spr. Howlett (Army) and Lt. Comdr. Garwood (Navy); J. E. Potter (Club) and Kishan Singh (Army); Lt. Spencer (Navy); Spr. Brown (Army) and Lt. Davies (Navy); G. E. R. Divett (Club); Lt. Dawson (Army); Guruchan Singh (Radio); Lt. Burch (Navy) and Lal Singh (Army).

Reserves:—Backs:—Lt. Comdr. Gush (Navy); Cpl. Kennedy (Army); Half Backs:—A. Silva (Recreio); Tara Singh (Army); Forward:—Lt. Wraith (Navy); S. A. J. Fowler (Club); Khuda Bux (Army); J. Pinto (K.I.T.C.); A. P. Souza (K.I.T.C.).

STONECUTTERS BEATEN

Reshuffled Club Team Win

THREE PLAYERS INJURED

The Club had little difficulty in gaining two points from Stonecutters in their First Division soccer fixture yesterday, winning by 4 goals to 1.

The Club did not field their regular team. Gamble, Pearce and Wilson replacing Hill, Fowler and E. Strango.

The game was marked by several injuries, Skinner of the Club receiving a nasty knock and having to change places with Pearce, while Lewis, the Gunners' left-back, had to leave the field in the first half. Hossack, the Gunners' centre-forward also sustained an injury before the final whistle and had to be assisted off the field.

Though the Club were the superior team, the Gunners gave a fine display. Hall, in goal, and Lewis and Oliver, the backs, being outstanding in a hard worked defence.

The Club did not play their usual game, but Elliot was in shooting form, and registered the "hat-trick," while Drown scored the other goal. The Gunners' only point came through Hossack, who beat Rodger with a fine shot.

LYEMUN FAIL TO APPEAR

Spectators Show Disappointment

The First Division League soccer game that was scheduled for yesterday afternoon, between the Police and Lyemun (R.A.), at Kowloon, was cancelled owing to the non-appearance of the Lyemun team.

A small but enthusiastic gathering clearly showed their disappointment, for the weather was ideal for soccer and this match had been looked forward to with eagerness.

NAVY SCORE 11

Kowloon Overwhelmed At Causeway Bay

The Navy, as last week, proved too good for Kowloon at Causeway Bay yesterday afternoon, beating them in their Second Division soccer engagement by 11 goals to nil.

In the first half Gould, Spencer (2) and Johnson scored for the Navy—all as a result of clever combination which left the opposition standing.

In the second half the Navy ran riot, scoring through Spencer (5), Johnson and Wryde, who netted with a really full-blooded drive from 25 yards to set the seal on a fine exhibition.

ENGINEERS RUN RIOT

Score Nine Against University

Although they took time to subdue the University, the Engineers eventually ran out clear victors by 9 goals to 1 in their Second Division match at Causeway Bay yesterday afternoon.

Willford scored the first for the Engineers from a penalty, Howlett the second after a 20-yards dribble, and Hurst and Howlett scored again before the interval.

During the second period Howlett, Hurst (2) and Craggs (2) increased the Engineers' total, while D. S. Blake scored the University's lone goal, from a penalty, after Yong had been brought down.

LEE WAI-TONG IN LIMELIGHT

CONVERTS FREE KICK IN GREAT STYLE

BUT RECREIO DESERVED POINT

SOUTH CHINA "A" effected a splendid return to form yesterday in their senior League soccer clash with the Recreio, winning a fast and entertaining match by the odd goal in three, after being a goal down within 10 minutes of the start.

Represented by their original "A" side, with the sole exception of Wong King-chung, who was seen in place of Tay Queellang, South China gave of their best. Lee Wai-tong, closely watched by Beltrao and A. V. Gosano, yet managed to obtain both his side's goals. Even so, the spirited display by Recreio fully earned them one point. Their swiftness in attack, methodical passing, and fine defensive tactics, equalled anything attempted by South China.

The outstanding feature of South China's attack was the fine inter-passing between Fung King-cheong and Ip Pak-wah. Their swiftness and accuracy bewildered the Recreio halves, yet failed to carry them past the resourceful "A.V." and "do-or-die" tactics of Bowen.

TO-DAY'S SOCCER PROGRAMME

Saints Out To Record The "Double"

A large crowd is expected at the Kowloon Football Club ground this afternoon where St. Joseph's entertain South China "B" in the First Division of the Football League, and, following their win last Sunday over South China "A," the Saints will go all out to record the "double."

Ward will return to the Saints' attack at inside-right, while the South China team will be selected from 15 players prior to the match.

CLUB JUNIORS BEATEN

Gilchrist Fails From Penalty Spot

South China just managed to take both points off the Club in their Second Division soccer encounter at Caroline Hill, scoring the only goal of the game from a penalty taken by Kam Sik-wai in the last eight minutes.

The Club had several good chances, and when a penalty came their way early in the second half, the result looked hopeful for them, but Gilchrist unhappily missed!

Early in the second period, Sloan missed a chance by shooting wide after Duncan had sent him through, and the same player shot across the goal when presented with a second opportunity.

GOALLESS DRAW

Medicals Hold Chinese Police

One of the finest football games played this season was witnessed on the Chatham Road ground yesterday when the Third Division encounter between the Medicals and the Chinese Police ended in a goalless draw.

After the interval the Chinese Police pressed, and only the stout defence displayed by Howells and the very safe keeping of Wright prevented them from scoring.

Towards the close of the game, however, the Medicals panned the Police in and bombarded their goal from all angles.

EASTERN DISAPPOINT

The Second Division football fixture between the Recreio and Eastern, due to be played on the King's Park ground yesterday, was cancelled owing to the non-appearance of Eastern.

Leung Wing-chiu, above, gave a sparkling display yesterday for South China "A" against the Recreio, the Chinese winning by the odd goal in three.

SCOTLAND WIN

INTERNATIONAL RUGBY

Brilliant Display By Grieve

SECOND HALF RALLY

A thrilling second half revival featured the final of the local International Rugby tournament on the Club ground yesterday, when Scotland beat Ireland by two goals and two tries (16 points) to two goals (10 points), after being led at the interval.

W. E. Grieve, the Shanghai Inter-club centre-threequarter, supplied the outstanding display of the match and showed a clean pair of heels whenever he got going, his try being one of the best seen on the Club ground this season.

Scotland made several positional changes in the second half which effectively turned the tables on the Irishmen, Warren's display at full-back, and Grieve, at fly-half, instead of at centre, causing havoc in the Irish team.

Shock Tactics

Ireland's shock tactics in the opening minute left the Scottish team spreadeagled and Fraser broke through to send Archer over in the corner for the opening try, which Gillespie converted with a good kick.

After several Irish movements had failed, Fraser brilliantly intercepted a high pass from Hutcheson to Grieve to score near the posts, Gillespie again converting.

After Scotland had made several positional changes, a new spirit prevailed and the Scots immediately rammed home their superiority, the ball swinging along the line in a fine movement for St. Clair Ford to score an unconverted try wide of the posts.

Scottish Revival

Soon after Scotland were again pressing and with only a yard to spare on the touchline, Grieve "sold the dummy" and touched down in the corner for Warren to convert with an excellent kick. Soon after McGilchrist crossed over the Irish goal-line and Warren again converted to give them the lead for the first time. Just before the end St. Clair Ford placed the issue beyond doubt with a try in the corner which Warren failed to improve upon.

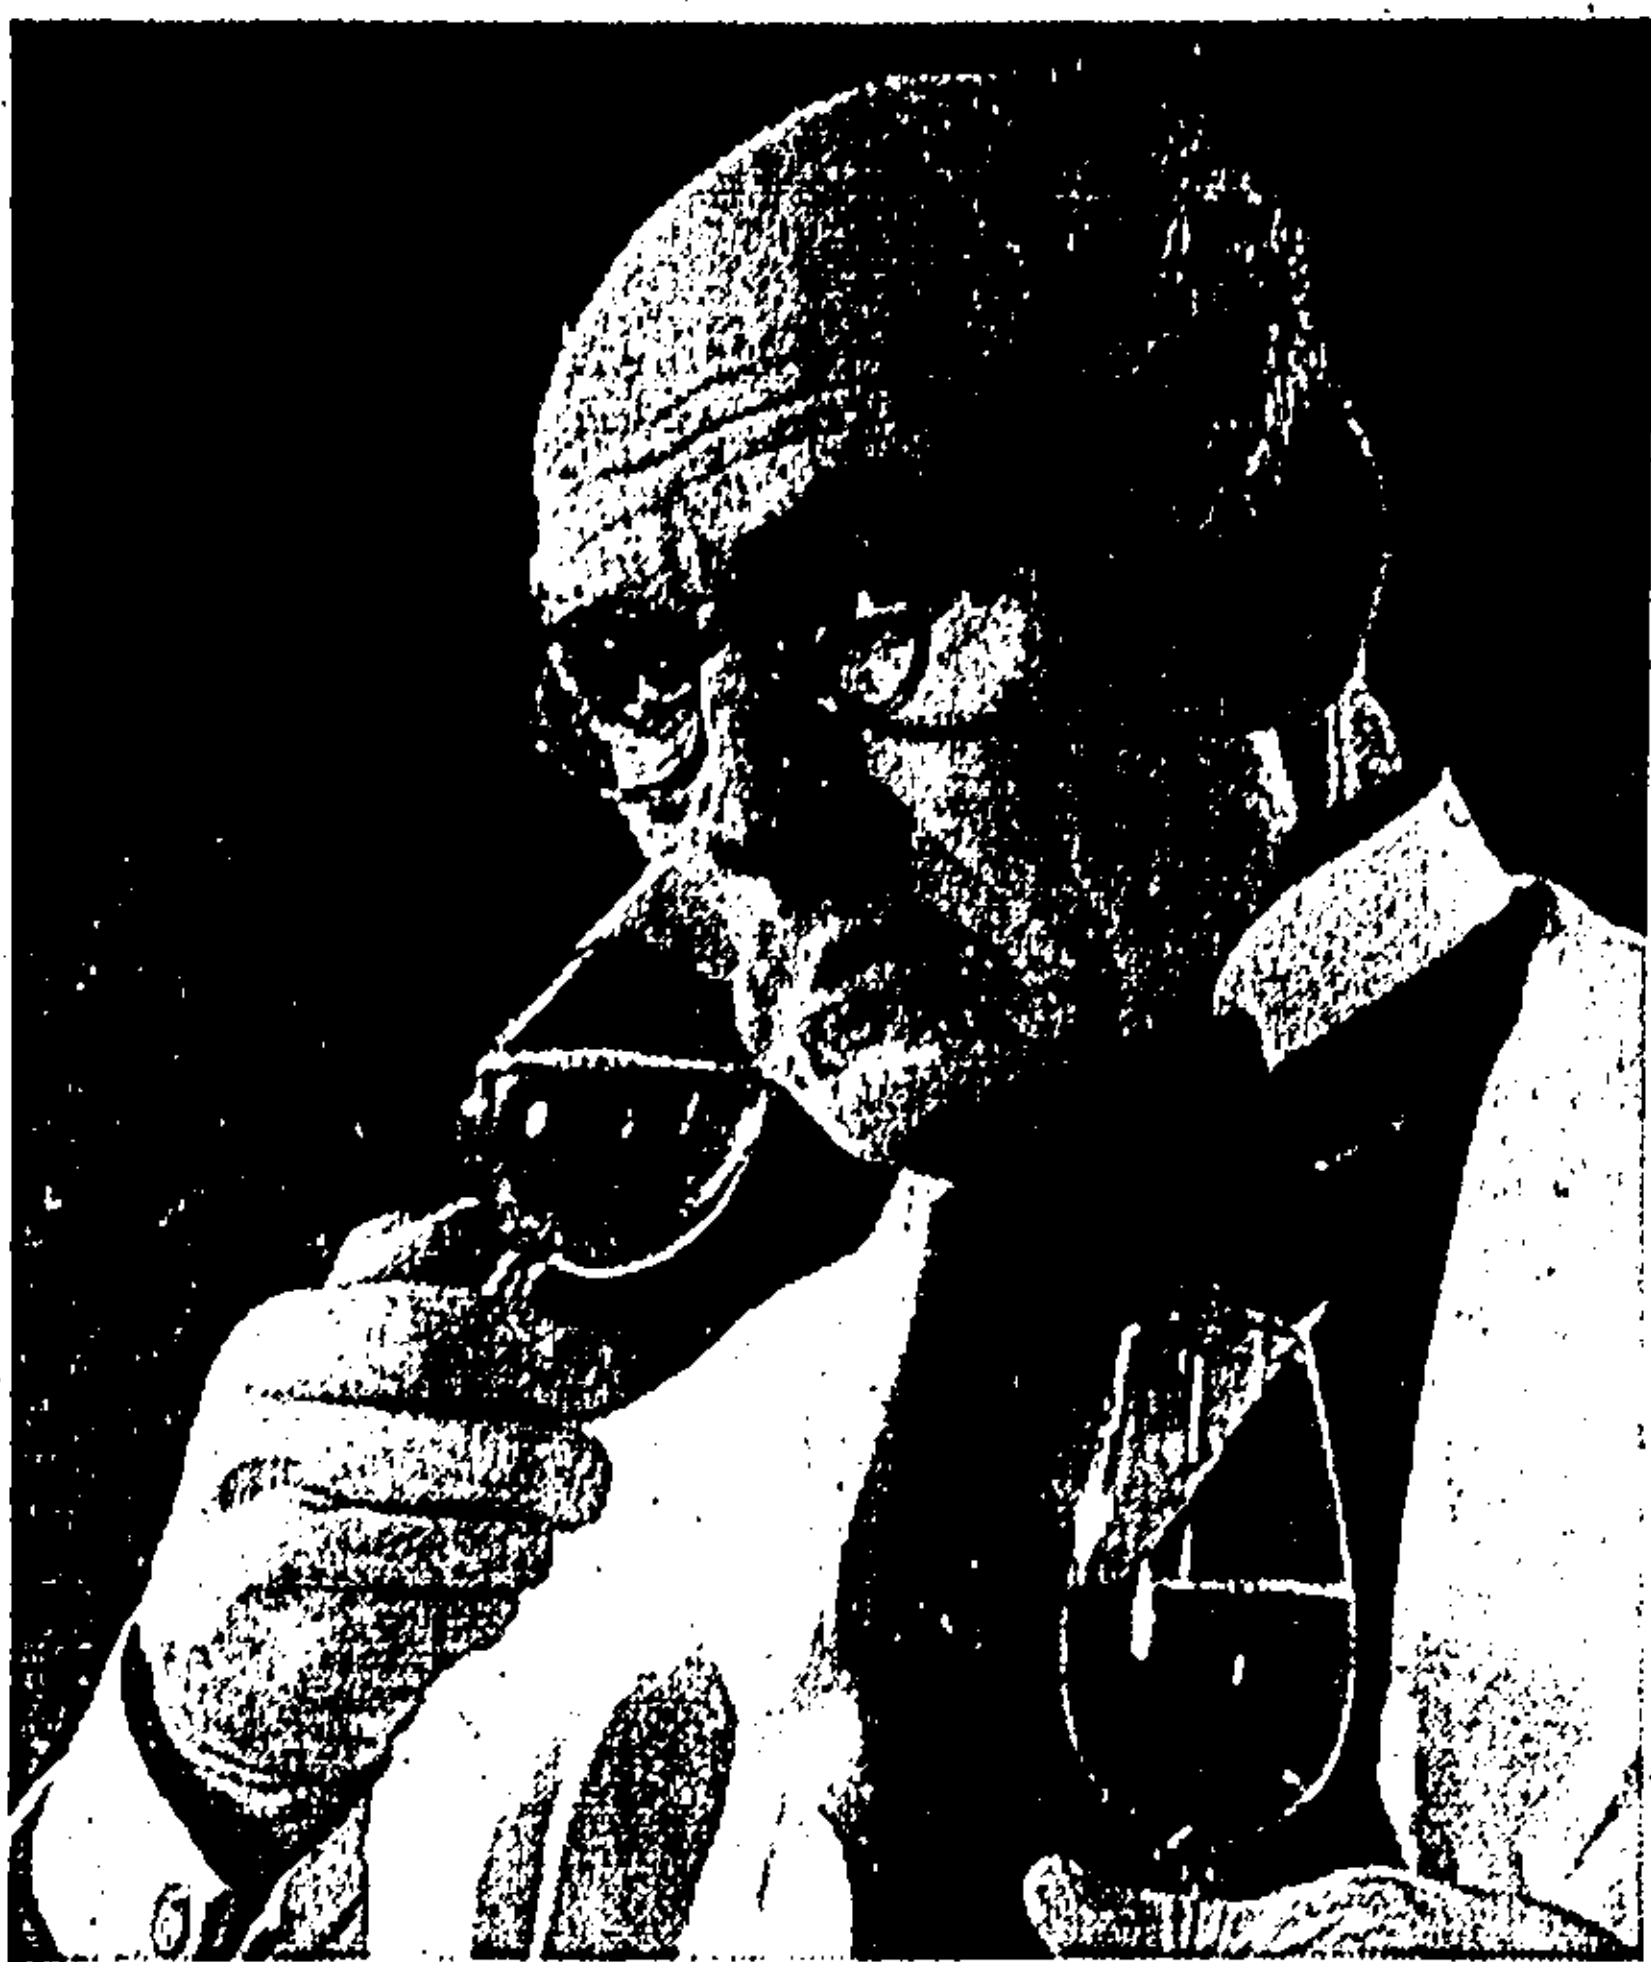

RUGBY SEVENS

Revised Draw Announced

The draw for the Blarney-Stone Seven-A-Side Rugby tournament, under the auspices of the Hong Kong Football Club in aid of Charity, had to be revised at the last moment owing to the late arrival of the Royal Air Force on trial form, which was mislaid in the post, but which was ultimately received and accepted.

The tournament commences tomorrow and the draw, giving times, is as follows:—

To-morrow
5 p.m.—R.A.M.C. v. Cornwall
5.15 p.m.—R.A. v. Tamar
5.30 p.m.—R.E. v. R.W.F. "B"

GRIMMETT TAKES 7 WICKETS

But Nourse Scores Half-Century

FINAL TEST AT DURBAN

Durban, Yesterday.
The sky was overcast when South Africa won the toss in the fifth and final Test against the Australians and elected to bat, but, owing to bad light, play was stopped half-an-hour before the official time for drawing stumps. The home team had then scored only 199 runs for the loss of 8 wickets, N. D. Nourse claiming 50. C. V. Grimmett was in fine form with the ball, taking seven of the eight wickets which fell.—Router.

WORLD'S RAREST ANIMAL

Spectacled Bear Of "Lost Triangle"

28,000 Miles In Search Of The Giant Panda

(By J. WENTWORTH DAY)

A man recently returned to its blank spaces—"Unexplored." England after having travelled 28,000 miles to shoot a specimen of the rarest animal in the world.

He spent exactly a fortnight looking for it, killed the finest specimen ever shot by a white man—and incidentally the first to be shot by an Englishman—and brought it back without any fuss or publicity.

The hunter is Captain H. C. Brocklehurst and the animal he shot is the giant panda.

Captain Brocklehurst was for many years Game Warden of the Sudan. His book on the big game of that country is the standard work on the subject. He guided the Prince of Wales, Duke of York, and the Earl and Countess of Athlone on their safaris in the Sudan.

He belongs to the age and the generation which bred such remarkable men as the late Denys Finch-Hatton—that younger generation which is carrying on the traditions of Selous, Cotton, Osweil, Sir Alfred Pease and others of the great African pioneers.

Knows All Africa

Captain Brocklehurst knows most of Africa inside out. Only a few years ago he traversed the Great Libyan desert from El Fasher to Dongola—I think the first white man to follow that route since the elaborate expeditions sent by a Khedive of Egypt twenty or thirty years ago.

He is one of those men, like Kingdon Ward, the discoverer of the blue poppy, who are never happy unless they are charting the unknown corners of the earth, seeking beyond the ranges for the treasures of the mist.

And like Kingdon Ward he went to that dim, far-off corner of China, "the Lost Triangle of the World," where amid stupendous, ridge-backed mountain ranges, the three great rivers Mekong, Salween and Irrawaddy rise in regions of eternal snow.

Look at that corner of the map and you will find one word written across the whiteness of

The "Spectacled Bear"

High up, in those gorges where, perhaps, not more than a score or so of white men have ever penetrated—some of them have never known a white man's footsteps at all—there lives an animal like no other animal.

The giant panda is a large mountain bear, almost entirely white except for a remarkable black "saddle" which runs right over its shoulders, down over its fore-quarters to the toes of its forefeet.

The hind legs are also black, as are the ears and the tip of the nose. Two extraordinary black blotches over and round each eye have given it the additional name of the spectacled bear.

No white man had shot one until 1929. Then Mr. Kermit Roosevelt and his brother, Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, sons of the late President of the United States, made an expedition purposely in search of it and succeeded in obtaining a specimen, which is now one of the most valuable exhibits in the famous Field Museum of Natural History at Chicago.

The British Museum possesses two poor specimens. Captain Brocklehurst went out specially on his 28,000-mile expedition, with no assistance apart from two native boys, to obtain a specimen for this country. The result is a magnificent skin, six feet ten inches in length, which I have seen.

Mr. Roosevelt tells me that it is a much larger and finer specimen than the one he obtained. But when I asked Captain Brocklehurst if our own British Museum had made any offer for this unique and valuable scientific specimen, he astonished me by saying that it was not particularly necessary for them to have it!

Scarcity Of Panda

This extraordinary animal was shot at an altitude of between 17,000 and 18,000 feet on a mountain slope only just below the regions of eternal snow. What astonished me most of all was to hear from Captain Brocklehurst how, after having the remarkable good fortune to shoot this giant panda at a range of about 16 feet, after only being a fortnight in panda country—and it is estimated that there are not more than one pair to every ten square miles—he should, on his way back to the lowlands, have encountered a native on the road who was carrying two small panda skins on his back! Both had been taken in native spear traps.

I dare say that trapper might have gone years before taking one. Anyway he wanted the equivalent of a local fortune for the skins when Captain Brocklehurst bought them.

Captain Brocklehurst travelled 1,600 miles up the Yangtze-Kiang to Chungking and thence 600 miles overland almost due north into the province of Szechuen, where, close to the borders of Tibet, he obtained the first British-killed specimen of "beishung," the white bear, as the Chinese call it—Ailuropus melanoleucus of the natural history books.

On his way back he narrowly missed striking the direct line of march of the Communist Army, then ravaging that part of China with flame and sword. They passed only seven miles behind his tiny expedition.

Rare Creatures

It is safe to describe the giant panda as "the rarest animal in the world."

That claim has been advanced for different animals at various times—the bongo, of which about 30 specimens have now been obtained; the okapi, which has now achieved the doubtful distinction of being on public view to the ignorant and curious; the yellow-backed duiker, of which quite 30 have been recorded; the dry land situtunga, scarcely known a few years ago, but now represented in every big museum; and the giant hush buck from the Imatong Mountains on the borders of the Sudan.

Almost the first specimen of the giant hush buck was recorded by Mr. Edward Grove in 1918. Since then a number of specimens have been obtained, including one or more by Captain Brocklehurst himself.

But all these animals live in comparatively less remote regions than the giant panda, whose home is amid the dense bamboo jungle, from 10,000 to 15,000 feet above sea level, that lie beneath the eternal snows on the savage frontiers of China and Tibet.

THE PASSING HOUR

THE great Einstein, with his general and special theories of physics, did much more than propound a new thesis for expert mathematicians; he unsettled our whole conception of the world by proving that "matter" in the old sense of the word, as something independent, solid, permanent, does not exist. Sooner or later science always manages to influence the philosophy of its own generation, as for instance in the popular doctrines of 50 years ago propounded by Dr. Henry Drummond in his "Natural Law in the Spiritual World." And now we have a new shock in discovering that the very basis of our calculations, the axis of the Earth itself, is subject to bends governed by the strain of our planet forcing its way through space at such a monstrous rate, and that though these oscillations are slight they are quite enough to cause cracks in the surface, which we call earthquakes.

THE POLITICAL AXIS

SOMETHING of that sort seems to have happened with our political axis too. Civilization is based on two propositions which a few years ago would have been taken for granted. The first was that the ordinary man, given a fair chance, was in favour of peace. Now far that axis has been bent out of the straight becomes clear in a moment if we consider how ridiculous those statements would appear to-day. The model of the statesman appears to be Napoleon, who in the longer arc of history has displaced the ideals of those who resisted and in the end defeated him. Napoleon was once described as a man who was "as great as a man could be without virtue." Whether that be accepted or not, the conclusion that has been drawn by his modern imitators is that he was great not in spite of, but because of, his lack of self-restraint and consideration for men in general, which is what was meant by the expression. But note the difference of the public opinion he had to deal with. Even his greatest admirers, if we read any history written at the time or within three generations after, condemned him for securing the assassination of the Duc d'Enghien, because the murder of a young and promising man who was a possible opponent, was thought to be "over the line"—though the line was comprehensive enough. Corresponding acts, such as the removal of Matteotti, "the 30th June," the massacre of the most famous of the Japanese Moderates, are taken as proof of the existence of a new party with strength and courage.

BLOOD AND IRON

WHAT all the world is speculating about since the news began to arrive is whether the bent axis will mean an early shock of the earthquake of war. "The evil that men do lives after them, the good is oft interred with their bones." Who remembers that it was Napoleon that breathed new life into Italy, and even, through antagonism, into Germany? It has been said that to France herself the most permanent result of his campaigns was to reduce the average height of the nation by two inches, because the biggest men were always chosen first by the recruiting sergeant. That may be an exaggeration, but one long-range result was that his system of conscription was imitated by those whom he defeated, to the subsequent great injury of his own country. And that is the main deduction from his whole career—that war makes war, and victory leads to defeat in the end.

WHAT WILL THE END BE?

THE weakness of the pacifist argument is, of course, that the decision between war and peace does not rest with the pacifist. There was nothing wrong with the original conception of the League of Nations as a world-wide organization of all the elements that wanted to "seek peace and ensue it." The fading of the dream can be very clearly traced by recalling the relations of Japan to the League. In the early stages Japan was a steady supporter—and very few people noticed that she was steadily building

THE USE OF LENT

READJUSTMENT OF OUR SPIRITUAL VALUES

DECIDING UPON OUR COURSE OF LIFE

(By The Rev. J. N. LEWIS BRYAN)

FOR these forty days before Easter Day Christians in every part of the world are keeping Lent.

It need not, however, for a moment be supposed that they will all be found dragging out mournful hymns in a minor key, varying their diet, or forswearing nicotine, glucose, alcohol and other things, without which they are probably very much better. If they are wise, they will perhaps undergo some discomfort, though, apart from an enhanced happiness which will be the outward result of their strivings, you may not notice any very obvious difference in their habits; for though great issues are involved, they are questions of principle and not mere externals.

Before a ship leaves on a deep-sea voyage she spends a tediously long time travelling in circles, while swinging the compass by which she is going to steer. Paint, rust, rivets, the thousand and one chances of ordinary usage, none of them perhaps very spectacular, have combined to throw the compass out of true.

Compass-Swinging

All of us, of any intelligence whatever, fitted ourselves with compasses before we set sail upon the high seas of life. As we came to the threshold of adolescence we dissected the whole universe, from God downwards, and thought out a remoulding of it nearer to our heart's desire.

We decided what was really worth aiming for, what our scale of values was going to be; and though many of our ideas now seem a trifle crude, many of us have found them materially satisfactory. Others of us have had occasion, at some later period, to change and recreate our scheme of things.

However, even though we have our final scale of values and have evolved a satisfactory compass by which to steer, there comes the need for a periodic overhaul, for compass-swinging. Everyday life calls for a multitude of quick decisions. There is no time for reasoning from first principles every time; instead we trust to instinct and experience. One thing leads to another; imperceptibly habits are formed; and in the end, like the bent and bearded railwayman, asked why he went along tapping the wheels, we really "don't know" why we do the commonest things; in fact we find ourselves in conflict with our original intentions.

The season of Lent is, therefore, our chance of compass-swinging, only instead of dealing with magnets, we have to concern ourselves with values and motives. We may make our corrections in more powerful ships, and training her boys to get used to a military uniform during their schooldays. At the date of the occupation of Mukden—which is one of the landmarks of history—she was seeking, rather clumsily it must be admitted, to justify her action.

The next step was to take the attitude of defiance to world opinion and recorded treaties, followed by retirement from the only tribunal which was devised to settle disputes by relying on the goodwill of all the members. There remained only the Washington Treaties as a foundation of a just peace in the Orient, and the London Naval Treaty as a protection from extravagant expenditure on preparation for war. Step by step the post-war structure has been demolished, at such times as the letter of those treaties allowed formalities to be observed. What is the crime of the eminent statesmen who have been sent to their death? It was that they exercised enough restraint to avoid any premature repudiation. This cautious procedure seemed to the young hot-heads to be too slow and too timid, though by the end of the current year Japan will be free from all agreements with the other Powers. It is very difficult to believe that so consistent a decline from the comity of nations will be checked when complete freedom of action has been achieved.

Lent or any other time; but it is done, whether we go to church or not. It will be recalled that Elijah, John the Baptist and, above all, The Master Himself frequently withdrew at intervals into solitude, to think out great questions from the beginning.

Ourselves Or Others?

The points at issue are absurdly simple, yet impossibly difficult to keep unclouded. Fundamentally the question is whether we prefer to act selfishly for our own benefit, or unselfishly for our neighbour's. Do we aim for the independence, comfort and power which the acquisition of money brings, or are we prepared humbly to efface ourselves and our own interests and endeavour to live for others—those who are our friends and those whom we detest? Is it really more blessed to give than to receive, or is that idea just impracticable, impossible nonsense?

This love of money, for instance, is often only a disguise for the love of power. Yet power in itself is not wrong. It depends upon the use we make of it. That was the great temptation, or trial, which Christ had to face at the beginning of His ministry. He felt Himself possessed of great and supernatural power. The Devil came in one form or another with three suggestions; that He would use it to turn stones into bread to relieve His material wants after forty days of starvation; again, that He would use it to impress and attract the crowds by a spectacular fall, unharmed, from a minaret of the Temple, amongst a people who were eagerly awaiting the great new leader who would lead them in triumph against the hated power of the Romans—the Messiah, so long promised across the long years of their national history. And again, that He should combine it with a physical force with which to coerce the kingdoms of the world. In each case He chose the way of self-denial, of meekness and of suffering.

The Use Of Power

Civilization stands to-day in the same wilderness. We find ourselves possessed of a power which even a thousand years ago would have been thought superhuman. How are we going to use it? One man can launch a torpedo that can sink a battleship; or release an aerial bomb to wipe out a town. Quickly as we can produce wealth, we can squander it even more quickly.

How are we going to use this power? The alternatives remain the same, however much the material expressions may vary, for self or unself. We can use our machines to enrich the few, putting millions out of work in starvation and want, or to create leisure and a higher standard of living for all. We can use them to make engines of destruction for battering out of existence in the shortest possible time human life and property, or for creating things of beauty and usefulness for millions of our fellow-men.

We can use our knowledge of medicine and biology to infect and exterminate whole populations, or to alleviate human suffering by staving off the dread diseases which attack indiscriminately the human body. Are we going to use our power for God or Devil, for murder and suicide or for life?

It would be a mighty good thing for the world at large in these perilous days to get down to a little compass-swinging. For nations and for individuals it would mean all the difference between life and death, the blessing and the curse.

WHOLE days of suffering, and in many cases avoided by the simple action of taking 'ASPRO'. When people realise what a wonderful medicine tablet 'ASPRO' is—how it soothes pain—how it reduces feverishness, and how, after ingestion in the system, being a solvent of uric acid—an internal antiseptic—an anti-pyretic or fever reducer—and a powerful germicide, it strikes at the cause of numerous complaints, then much suffering will be avoided—much illness prevented.

Enterprise And Caution

THE renowned optimistic philosopher Dr. Pangloss rejoiced in finding a silver lining to every cloud, in order to prove his great thesis that everything is for the best in the best of all possible worlds. What a sheaf of cogent evidence he could collect in a visit to Hong Kong! He would allow his eye to rest on a headline "official statistics for past month show big decline," on a headline "official statistics for past month show big decline," and on reading the columns of figures he would find that the drop was of £2,200,000 in imports and £3,000,000 in exports. There is nothing that an optimist could read with greater satisfaction.

On another page he would be informed that Sir Frederick Leith-Ross sees little hope, after conferring with the merchants of Canton, of any early increase in British trade with China. Another comforting item. And on referring to the "China Trade Survey" he would be still more encouraged by noticing that British trade with China as a whole had dropped to 8 per cent. from double that percentage not so many years ago.

But if it seemed that these little facts might require all the ingenuity of the benevolent old gentleman to explain away, he would find a glow of satisfaction in a circular letter purporting to be compiled by the Hong Kong General Chamber of Commerce in the interests of the Colony's trade, and abounding with the pure milk of benevolent philanthropy. It is stated that the use of a vacant bit of ground has been granted free by the Government in order that no chance of promoting business may be missed, and this is deplored, possibly because the use of the ground may increase unemployment. It is also a matter of regret that possibly some of the Home manufacturers who might regret that specimens of their wares at a Trade Fair "do want to exhibit the nature of this port, nor its comparative unimportance in size and share of actual business vis-a-vis South China as a whole." At any rate, after receiving this warning they will be saved from the danger of using the entrepot, or increasing the size and share of the trade. Such tender solicitude is rare in business life.

We also learn that the proposal for a Fair was mooted a year ago, and was discouraged by the Chamber largely on the ground that the variability of the exchange made Hong Kong a bad centre for trade. That was at the time quite true. Those who had purchased at a low dollar had stocks which they could only dispose of at a big loss at a high dollar. But surely, now that the Government and the Banks have a working scheme of currency management, it is a very poor compliment to the managers of money to suggest that "the expenditure of money on participation in a Fair would be even less justified this year than it might have been in June last?" As the writer would be under no compulsion to spend his own money, this is again pure philanthropy.

Coming down to bedrock, Chinese trade is similar to any other trade at least in one respect, that any sound and permanent trade must be reciprocal, a two-way and not a one-way street. The British trade with China in imports has dropped away in the same ratio as the Exports. The natural way for Chinese merchants to get sterling for the purchase of British goods is to be able to sell their produce to buyers who will buy and pay in sterling. All the objections based on the Hong Kong dollar fall away if the price is fixed in sterling or if our own dollar is kept steadily at one sterling valuation. There happen to be quite a number of merchants who being Chinese, may be presumed to know local conditions, who are inclined to think that if they could get into touch with sterling buyers they might have a large field of quotations to choose from, and do better business. That field of quotations for the fact that the Chinese Chamber is in favour of the scheme, and as they may be mistaken it is sheer philanthropy to save them from themselves. In any case the control is to be put into the hands of committees representing these two sections of people who imagine, however erroneously, that it would be to their advantage to be able to form their own opinion.

Sir Frederick Leith-Ross considers that Canton and Shanghai are both managing their currencies well, and that there is a prospect of a national currency some day. But in any case it is hard to understand why "China is not ripe for a Trade Fair." Time is always "ripe" and so is China, for enterprise. If not now, when will China be "ripe"? What a time Dr. Pangloss would have!

Hong Kong PersonalitiesDR. J. T. SMALLEY

This is the eighty-second of the exclusive series of sketches of leading Colony residents by Mr. A. S. Konyas, the talented Hungarian artist.

OUR Personality this week is Dr. James Thornton Smalley, M.R.C.S., L.R.C.P. (London), Senior Medical Officer in charge of Kowloon Hospital.

The son of Maj.-General, Frederick Smalley, of the Indian Army, James Thornton Smalley was born on November 16, 1882 and received his education at Guy's Hospital, where, during 1907 and 1908, he served successively as Clinical Assistant, Assistant House Surgeon, Out-patient Officer and House Surgeon. In 1909 also as acting Ophthalmic House Surgeon and Acting Obstetric House Surgeon. His next appointment was that of Resident Medical Officer at the Portsea Infirmary (1,000 beds), after which he served a short term as House Surgeon of Worcester General Infirmary in 1909.

Service in Fiji
In September 1909 he received his first Colonial appointment and sailed for Fiji, arriving there in February 1910, his first post being that of Resident Medical Officer at the Colonial Hospital, Suva. Later that year he was appointed District Medical Officer of the Province of Ra, where he remained till he was transferred to Levuka as Medical Officer of Health and Port Medical Officer, being at the same time made a Stipendiary Magistrate of the Colony. Five months later he returned to the Province of Ra as District Medical Officer.

Transfer to Hong Kong

In January 1913 Dr. Smalley was transferred to Hong Kong, arriving in the Colony on May 2, since when he has been in charge of all the Government Hospitals, most of his service, however, having been in Kowloon. He has also acted as Lecturer on Pharmacology and Public Health and Hygiene, and Examiner in Physiology and Public Health and Hygiene at the University of Hong Kong. He was Acting Principal Civil Medical Officer from November 4, 1927, to January 3, 1928, Acting Deputy Director of Medical and Sanitary Services from February 1, 1928, to February 1, 1929, and was promoted Principal Medical Officer on January 1, 1931.

Dr. Smalley's connection with Kowloon Hospital dates from January 1930, where he became Senior Medical Officer-in-Charge in November 1933. His genial presence will be sadly missed when he goes on leave shortly, prior to retirement from the Government service. There is one item of which Dr. Smalley does his own dispensing—happiness and cheery smiles; and his famous pick-me-up, "Mist. Smalley," will doubtless remain more than a mere tradition after he has departed.

ITALIANS CAPTURE
AMBA ALAGI*LAST OBJECTIVE BEFORE
RAINS SET IN*ADOWA DEFEAT OF 1896 AVENGED

Rome, Yesterday.

A communique from Marshal Badoglio announces the capture of the summit of Amba Alagi. The position is 9,000 feet high and is regarded by the Italians as of great strategic importance. This is possibly the last Italian objective before the rains set in.

The communique adds that the capture was effected without serious opposition and places the gateway of Abyssinia in Italian hands. All the territory occupied by the Italians before the Battle of Adowa in 1896 reverts to the Italians. It is believed that the Italians may advance as far south as Lake Ashangi before the rains.

Marshal Badoglio stated: "The troops of the 1st Army Corps reached the summit of Amba Alagi early in the morning, and the tricolour is now flying there. The troops avenged the defeat of the Italian forces in 1896."

PACIFIC LINER
TRAGEDY*Solitary One-Cent Piece
Left By Keyes

San Francisco, Yesterday.
Officials of the liner Chichibu Maru stated that Mr. Stanley Keyes, the English police officer from Shanghai found missing when the ship docked, appeared to be depressed for several days prior to his disappearance. Attendants discovered Mr. Keyes's cabin stained with blood, and a pocket-knife with the blade bent. His extensive baggage is being sent to Shanghai, and has not been opened. His purse contained a solitary one-cent piece. Mr. Keyes did not leave a farewell note.—Reuter.

FIVE YEARS AGO

(Extracts from the Sunday Herald of March 1, 1931).

Mr. L. Dunbar's Diana Bay (Mr. Hill) won the Foochow Cup on the first day of the Annual Race Meeting in the record time of 3.00.3. Dunbar's Sitting Bull (Mr. Sokoloff) was second.

A charity football game was played on the Kowloon Football Club ground between the crews of the Empress of Canada and the Empress of Russia in aid of the widow of the late Mr. J. Harrison, a plumber on the Empress of Russia who was murdered during the voyage between Hong Kong and Manila by a Filipino passenger.

Three civil servants received the congratulations of their friends and colleagues on reaching another milestone in their long service to the colony. They were Mr. W. G. FitzGibbon B.A., secretary to the Director of Public Works, who joined the service in 1916, Mr. Walter Old, senior sanitary inspector, who joined in 1915, and Mr. G. E. Roylance, a first class sanitary inspector, who joined in 1916.

Kowloon Football Club provided the greatest surprise in local football circles when they beat South China by three clear goals in the Senior Division. Rough play on both sides marred the game; one player received marching orders. Simpson, Elias and C. Pile scored for Kowloon.

London, Yesterday.

The Minister of Labour yesterday announced a reduction in the unemployment insurance contributions from employers and workers. He stated that the insurance funds had a surplus of £6,500,000 yearly for disposal and it was proposed to reduce the weekly rate by 1d.

The Minister of Labour also stated that White Paper would be issued by the Government in reply to the questionnaire from the Geneva International Labour Office regarding the 40-hour week. The Minister stated that he would attend the International Labour Conference this year at Geneva.—Reuter's Bulletin Service.

LONG SITTING
OF HOUSE*22 HOURS AT A STRETCH

London, Yesterday.

After sitting continuously for nearly 22 hours the House of Commons rose shortly after noon yesterday. The main business before the House was the discussion of the various supplementary estimates, the Opposition refusing to allow their passage without a full debate. When the House ultimately rose it was agreed that the Committee stage of the bill for the continuance of the shipping subsidy and certain other Government business should stand adjourned until Monday. Owing to the encroachment of the long sitting on yesterday's Parliamentary time the normal Friday morning session, which is devoted to private members' business, was automatically abandoned.—British Wireless Service.

Bern, Yesterday.

The Swiss reply to the recent German note protesting against the suppression of Nazi organizations in Switzerland, handed in to the German Minister here, states that the Federal Council cannot reverse its decision and hopes that the German Government will prove its understanding of the situation and avoid any erroneous interpretation to German public opinion.—Reuter.

Strained Nerves Are Starved Nerves

THE rush and hurry of modern life result in nervous strain and loss of vitality. You become "run-down" and "nervy." The cause is simply that the wastage of the nerve cells and tissues has not been made good by sufficient of the restorative elements to be obtained only from nourishment.

The food products from which 'Ovaltine' is made—malt, milk and eggs—are Nature's foods which are richest in nerve-restoring nourishment. Eggs, in particular, are rich in organic phosphorus compounds which are essential for building up the brain and nerves.

Avoid haphazard mixtures of cocoa and chocolate which claim to be "just as good." There is nothing just as good as 'Ovaltine.'

DID you ever stop to think that good manners are just good common sense? At least it ought to be considered good common sense to avoid hard feeling, unnecessary confusion, ridicule and the like. But, on the other hand, just ordinary good common sense is rather uncommon—hence the dearth of good manners.

No doubt it was just ordinary good common sense that decided it was wisest not to eat off the end of one's knife and resulted in this being considered the height of ill-breeding. Wisdom warns a man that if he persists in any kind of noisy table manners the chances are he may have to eat alone whether he likes it or not.

Loss Of Friendliness

Falling to return borrowed articles or forgetting to keep engagements results in loss of friendship and so common sense tells a man the exercise of good manners is preferable.

One of the surest ways to acquire good manners is to try

Air As FUEL

IF experiments now proceeding in Japan are successful a complete revolution will be effected in motor transport. For it is hoped to produce an effective method of utilising air as a fuel. This would be in the form of a liquid.

It is well known that, with increase of temperature, a solid becomes a liquid and a liquid a gas. Decreases in temperature produce the reverse movement—gases into liquids into solids.

The particular stage in the temperature at which change takes place varies, of course, with the substance. In the case of air, it takes an extremely low temperature even to make it liquid. And the new motor utilises this fact. For as the liquid air is released from its cooled container into what corresponds to the combustion chamber, it immediately "evaporates into thin air" (literally) and expands. This expansion forces a piston into action, and this in turn operates the engine.

A PUZZLE

A BUSINESS man went on a vacation and told his butler that he expected a very important letter which would be mailed to his home in a few days.

He asked the butler to forward the letter to the new address.

The butler discovered that his master had unfortunately taken with him the key to the letter box which was on the inside of the front door.

So he wrote, asking him to mail the key so that the box could be opened.

Explain why the man did not receive the letter expected.

The "WHY" of GOOD MANNERS

putting yourself in the other fellow's place and seeing how you like being there. If you do not like it, then you may know that what you are doing is wrong so far as good manners are concerned.

If you would not like to have a friend enter your house for the first time, examine the curtains, gaze at the pictures, and finger the ornaments, then you may know that this is not only bad manners but decidedly poor taste.

Good manners are for the individual what good management is to the business world—it makes everything run just that much smoother.

CRADLE OF HARMONY

PAROLED to the custody of friends and relatives, Jack Cook, the Edison of Byron, is once more snugly tucked away in what is sometimes called his laboratory—among other names—working for the uplift of humanity.

Recognising that the home is the foundation of our alphabetical democracy, he has turned his attention recently to the welfare of the home—in other words, the husband. It is the innate tendency of the husband to stray or roam about, research discloses, thus leading to ruptured domesticity and the divorce courts.

Cure Worked Out

Cook has worked out, in his "Happy Home" Husband Holder, the cure for this tendency. Going back to primitive causes and effects, he has constructed a rocking chair, with certain embellishments, which rocks sidewise, like a cradle, instead of forward and backward.

As indicated by the simple illustration, a special stand at one side of the rocking arc holds refreshing beverages, the other a remote control for radio, smoking equipment and reading matter. A reading light, attached to the top of the chair, swings in unison, providing excellent reading illumination.

The Theory

The theory is that once the husband is securely ensconced in the new type of chair he will gently sway from side to side in a lulling motion, slipping now and then at the handy beverages, and any and all ideas of getting out and running round will vanish. In fact, under proper conditions, the old boy will just lull himself into a semi-alcoholic daze and simply sit there and purr like a cat in front of an open fire.

Thus we safeguard the home, take the strain off the divorce courts and insure the future of our grand and glorious nation.

About TOWN

Mr. Ho Kom-tong, Dr. J. Croot and Mr. Norman Deltz photographed at the Valley. (King's Studio).

WHAT a pity that the Clerk of the Weather could not be squared to give us a fine week for the annual Races, which make as it were an introduction to the Hong Kong season. An occasional shower would be all right to keep the wonderful show of flowers fresh and bright, but a downpour takes away the holiday atmosphere completely, and leaves a discouraged crowd to sit about with wet feet and contemplate their folly in choosing the wrong pony so consistently. And of course the heavy going does upset the best-laid plans sometimes. There could certainly be no complaint about the programmes or the racing, and the percentage of favourites that got home probably left the final result pretty much as it should be, that the members and the public ended up "as you were," with the exception that they had contributed 12½ per cent. towards the stakes.

The defeat of Royal Scot was one more hint that the clocked times are not conclusive unless they have some public form to support them. Ribble would be another proof of how variable are the moods of a pony. A fast pony that does not go all out at the finish is far more disastrous to the backers than a pony that never makes any promises at all.

Pirates And Mutineers

There was not much surprise at the good houses that turned up for "Mutiny on the Bounty." There are those who say that Franchot Tone stole the film by his speech at the court martial in the last scene, but it is surely more reasonable to hand the bouquet to Charles Laughton on the simple ground that with actors, as with horses, the prize should go to a consistent performer who carries through a good impersonation through many scenes, particularly if the character is a difficult one. In any case the box-office established a record, and the film itself in its tour through America established a similar record as the best "grosser"—a trade term meaning an attraction of paying patrons "in gross" before the management of the theatre, the distributor, the newspapers and everybody else concerned begin to take their share. It is quaint that the nearest rival should be Mae West's best film. Perhaps the moral is that a film producer should know his own mind clearly before he begins "shoot-ing," and stick to his conception. If his object is "sex appeal," there need be no attempt at drama, and if it is drama there need be no attempt at sex appeal. Perhaps the exception may be made that if his object is farce there should either be some relief to enhance the funniness of the comic scenes, or else the film should only be a short. No audience can keep on laughing heartily for more than a few minutes, and if the comedy goes on too long one gets an impression that it is machine-made.

Fortification

In London the fact that there may have to be some increase in our local fortification is merely a matter of policy, and of very distant interest. Here it will mean a big vote for works of all sorts, and an increase in the service element both for social and sporting purposes. The Empire has many stations which owe their origin to a garrison, and to anyone who has had an inside acquaintance with the life of such places, and can compare it with that of those which have been founded for other purposes, it is extraordinary how long the tone of the garrison town will remain even after the troops themselves have been withdrawn. In South Africa there are two large towns within a hundred miles of each other, one of which was founded by sheep-farmers who wanted a market, while the other was founded as a military base, mostly for cavalry. There are no troops there now, but the type of inhabitant, even after a century, is absolutely distinct, and both are quite different from Johannesburg people, who are celebrating this year the fiftieth anniversary of their foundation by mining engineers by what promises to be quite a wonderful exhibition. No place has better facilities, and visitors will be surprised to find such a well laid-out city and such beautiful suburbs. The man who actually found the first nugget—a very rare thing in the banket formation, at which an amateur could gaze with no suspicion that it contained any metal at all, was a cattle herd who was in debt for his board and accepted a few shillings to pay the farmer for whom he was working at odd times. The purchaser was a prospector who put up a 10 horse-power battery and was considered very rash to do so. Even to this day the old adventurous spirit is rife, and there is nowhere that would so quickly take up a "wild cat" scheme that had any merit at all. Nowhere either would a fraud be so quickly detected.

It would be a long story to mention the settlements by pirates, mutineers, and "shanghaied" sailors. They all seem to have settled down in the end. In Hong Kong, of course, it was the pirates that were displaced. —Commentator.

Shanghai Lady Hockey Player Hero
MISS E. Eardley, one of Shanghai's well-known lady hockey players and a sister of Miss Declina Eardley, who played for the Shanghai Ladies' Hockey Association against the Colony here two years ago, is at present in the Colony. She is the fiancée of Mr. Syd Strange, the Club soccer full-back.

Wong May Return To Colony
HIS many friends in the Colony will be interested to learn that there is a distinct possibility that S. H. Wong, the former University and Colony back-stroke swimming champion, will return to the Colony in the near future. He has been doing hospital work in Kedah since he graduated some two or three years ago.

Inter-Company Rugby Series
THE Royal Welch Fusiliers and the East Lancashire Regiment, whose headquarters are at Hankow and Nanking Barracks, Shamshui, have commenced their Rugby Inter-Company matches on the new Polo ground, which is one of the best grounds in the Colony.

Sulleman Now In Johore
A. B. SULLEMAN, the former University cricketer and athlete (Lugard Hall) is now in the Education Department in Johore. He is still playing a lot of cricket and in a letter to a friend here recently stated that he wished to be remembered to his many friends in the Colony.

Another former University sportsman, S. O. Shahbuddin, is now a Magistrate in Malaya. He used to be one of their best jumpers and, though he no longer goes in for it from a competitive point of view, he still takes a great interest in all forms of sport.

Inter-School Sports Wanted
IT was evident from the enthusiasm displayed at the La Salle College annual sports meeting last Saturday that the revival of the annual Inter-School Athletic meeting would be welcomed on all sides. These meetings were once looked forward to with the greatest of interest by all concerned.

Footballer's Distinction
VU PAK-CHUEN, who has just passed his Bar examination at Home, will be remembered by old Queen's College boys as an extremely useful footballer. He used to turn out with marked success for the College team, but it is understood that he has not been able to devote much time to football of recent years.

Clark's Fine Wicket-Keeping
ALTHOUGH W. L. Clark, the former Interport soccer goalkeeper, only took up cricket comparatively recently, he has developed into a very good wicket-keeper. He takes everything in the approved manner and is perhaps one of the best stumpers in the junior division of the cricket League to-day.

Navy Rugby Loss
COMMANDER D. Orr Ewing, Staff Officer (Operations) in the Commodore's Office, will shortly be leaving the Colony. He has been one of the keenest supporters of Rugby football in the Navy here and has been capped for the Navy at Home.

Physical Culture Adherent
J. HOUSEN, the Indian Recreation Club lawn bowler, is also a keen follower of physical culture. Up to a couple of years ago, he was also very keen on boxing, figuring in many friendly bouts with boxers who appeared in the City Hall or Lee Theatre tournaments.

Triangular Bridge Contest
THE Kowloon Cricket Club have been invited to take part in a Triangular Contract Bridge match against the American Club and Club de Recreo, and the following pairs have been selected: Hon. AMERICA SHOWS CONCERN AT WAR POSSIBILITIES IN PACIFIC

NEWS ABOUT CHINA

More Wanted In America

HANDICAP OF HIGH CABLE RATES

Nanking, Yesterday. Papers in America want more political and economic news about China, according to Mr. James H. Furry, Vice-President of the United Press Association, U.S.A., who has been visiting the Capital for the last three days. He left for Shanghai by train last night accompanied by Mr. John Morris, manager of the Far Eastern Bureau of the United Press.

While giving preference to political and economic news from China, Mr. Furry declared that the American reading public demands more background news interpreting the men and factors behind the scenes.

HIGH CABLE RATES One of the hindrances in the way of sending more news to America about China by foreign news agencies is the high cable rate, the veteran journalist opined. He declared that the press rate should be cut down.

On a tour to the Far East to visit the bureaux of the United Press in Manila, China and Japan, Mr. Furry will leave Shanghai for Yokohama abroad the s.s. President Grant on March 3, where he will meet Mrs. Furry, who is now on her way to join her husband from New York. After a short visit to Japan they will proceed to Honolulu.

Mr. Furry was entertained at a dinner party on Thursday night. He was the guest of honour of the Nanking Journalists' Institute at luncheon at noon yesterday. — Central News Agency.

THE LEAGUE AND CHINA

Plans For Technical Collaboration

Geneva, Yesterday. The China Committee Council, which is presided over by the President (at present Mr. Stanley Bruce, Australia), has been convened for Monday to discuss the plans for technical collaboration with China in 1936. — Reuter.

THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS

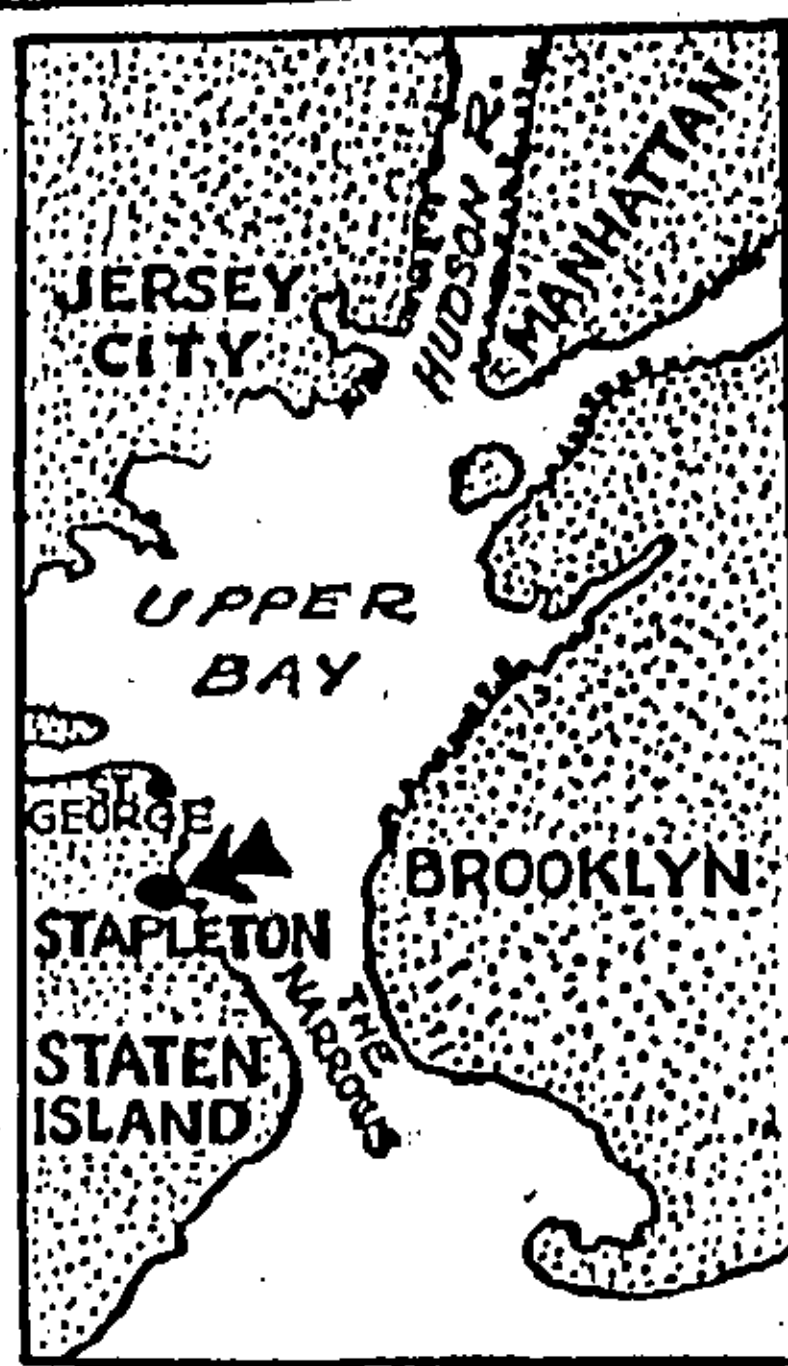

British Reply To Italian Note

COMMUNICATED TO OTHER GOVERNMENTS

London, Yesterday. The United Kingdom Government sent the Chairman of the Co-ordination Committee of the League a letter on February 15, forwarding for the information of States members of the Committee the British reply to the Italian communication concerning the exchange of views between the United Kingdom and the French and certain other Governments, as to the application of Article XVI of the Covenant.

The origin of this affair is a note verbale handed to the British Government by the Italian Ambassador in London on January 24, to state the Italian opinion concerning the said exchange of views. The latter related to the assistance that the British Government might expect from the French, Hellenic and Yugoslav Governments, should special military measures be taken by Italy against Great Britain, owing to the latter's participation in international action under Article XVI.

The text of the Italian note verbale was attached by the United Kingdom Government to its communication to the Chairman of the Co-operation Committee as well as the reply made by the United Kingdom Government. These exchanges of notes have already been communicated to the press. The new fact is that, in accordance with the British request, they have been officially communicated to all States members of the Co-ordination Committee. — British Wireless Service.

SHORTAGE OF TIN

Representations To British Govt.

COMMITTEE FORMED

London, Yesterday. Reuter learns that the members of the London Metal Exchange have formed a committee, which has decided to draw the Government's attention to the seriousness of the present shortage of tin in this country, urging remedial measures. This reflects the discontent of the market at the decision of the International Tin Committee's recent decision to reduce the quota from 90 to 85 per cent., which the market fears will result in a further deterioration of the precarious London position.

The metal brokers Strauss and Co., interviewed by Reuter, pointed out that Bolivia lags behind to the extent of 4,000 tons. Since Bolivian ores are smelted in Britain this principally accounts for the shortage in the London stocks, which are at present 600 tons, or less than 10 days' supply. — Reuter.

BRITISH TRADE FAIR

Success Of Recent Exhibition

London, Yesterday. The Chairman of the Management Committee of the British Industries Fair at Birmingham stated yesterday afternoon that the engineering and hardware section of the Fair of 1936 had been one of the most outstandingly successful since the section was inaugurated in 1920 and had attained a standard which would make it a measure for comparison in future years. Large orders had been placed in almost every group and much of the business initiated at the Fair would be translated into contracts. — British Wireless Service.

NAVAL DISCUSSIONS

London, Yesterday. — The head of United States Naval delegation, Mr. Norman Davis, called on the Foreign Secretary, Mr. Anthony Eden, at the Foreign Office yesterday. They discussed the position of the Naval Conference in view of Italy's attitude, which is that, although prepared to continue an examination of technical matters, she is unwilling to sign the Treaty at the present moment. — British Wireless Service.

ST. STEPHEN'S SPORTS

Two Records Broken At Stanley

FORMER CHAMPION UNABLE TO COMPETE

Two records were shattered at the St. Stephen's Boys' College athletic meeting at Stanley yesterday afternoon before a large crowd.

Lam Yue-shing bettered his own record of last year by over a foot in the pole vault event, while the Kuo-seng carried off the honours in Putting the Shot.

Yap Chiao-ho, Victor Ludorum last year, was unable to compete owing to a broken arm.

At the conclusion of the sports Lady Shenton congratulated the winners and distributed the prizes. At her request the students of the College have been granted a holiday to-morrow.

THE RETIRING VICEROY

Sailing For England On April 18

New Delhi, Yesterday. Lord Willingdon, the retiring Viceroy, will depart from New Delhi on April 15 for Bombay and will sail for England on April 18. The new Viceroy arrives at Bombay on April 17 and will be sworn into office at New Delhi the following day. — Reuter's Bulletin Service.

LEAGUE BULLETIN OF STATISTICS

General Improvement In World Trade

Geneva, Yesterday. The League's monthly bulletin of statistics for February just issued gives, besides the usual tables, information concerning the movement of world trade in and production of iron, steel, zinc, coal and petroleum and world stocks of raw materials between 1929 and 1935.

It shows also that both the gold value and the total amount of world trade were higher in 1935 than in 1934. World production of iron, steel, zinc, coal, lignite and petroleum in 1935 was higher than in 1934. The general index of world stocks of raw materials at the end of 1935 was only 25 per cent. higher than in June 1929, whereas towards the middle of 1934 it was about 50 per cent. higher. — British Wireless Service.

STATE GRANT TO UNIVERSITIES

Large Increase For Next Five Years

London, Yesterday. The State grant in aid of the Universities, which is now £1,830,000, is to be raised to £2,100,000 for each year of the next quinquennium, with a special additional increase of £150,000 for the first year of that period.

In announcing this decision the Chancellor of the Exchequer, Mr. Neville Chamberlain, says that in making this special addition to the vote for 1936-37 his intention is in effect to give back to the Universities Grant Committee the reserve of £150,000, which was surrendered to the Exchequer during the financial crisis. — British Wireless Service.

Senior Championship: The Kai-seng (18 points).
Junior Championship: Poo See-dong (40 points).
Group Championship: The Tigers (118 points).

WEST-COAST REPAIR FACILITIES

REHABILITATION NEED EMPHASISED

MATTER OF SELF-DEFENCE WHICH CANNOT BE OVERLOOKED

Washington, Yesterday. The presence of the American Fleet in the Pacific and the conditions of the Far East were stressed before the Naval Committee of the House of Representatives yesterday, as emphasising the necessity for the rehabilitation of the west coast shipbuilding and repair facilities.

The Pacific Coast Congressional delegation urged a 6 per cent. differential in favour of west coast shipbuilders in the proposed construction of 54 auxiliary naval vessels.

"We should be worse than blind if we closed our eyes to the conditions in the Far East. This is a matter of self-defence the Committee cannot afford to overlook," declared Representative Kahn.

H.M. THE KING'S BROADCAST

Full Particulars Announced

London, Yesterday. H. M. the King's broadcast to-morrow will be transmitted by the B. B. C. Empire station at Daventry on three wave-lengths: GSG, 16.80 metres; GSF, 19.82 metres, and GFD 25.53 metres. In order to ensure the widest possible distribution the General Post Office's telephone service will provide circuits to Canada, Australia, South Africa and India. The broadcast will also be relayed to 11 foreign countries, including America and France. — Reuter.

Widespread interest is being displayed throughout the Empire in His Majesty the King's broadcast speech to-morrow afternoon. In many foreign countries arrangements are also being made for relaying the speech. — British Wireless Service.

SWISS NAZI BAN

Decision Will Not Be Modified

"SUNDAY HERALD" SPECIAL

Berne, Yesterday. The Swiss Government's reply to the German note protesting against the Swiss ban on all National-Socialist organisations in Switzerland was handed in to the German Minister yesterday.

Although the text is not yet published, it is understood that the note deals at some length with the legal points raised in the German protest, but refuses to modify the decree prohibiting the appointment of National-Socialist regional leaders in Switzerland. — Trans-ocean Service.

YOUNGEST BRIDE THIS YEAR AT REGISTRY

The youngest bride to be married before the Registrar of the Supreme Court this year will be Miss Margaret Yip, of Montreal, Canada, who next Saturday morning will become the bride of Mr. William Chin. The lady is only 17 years of age, and the bridegroom, who arrived in the Colony a few years ago from America to study Chinese, is 21. After their marriage at the registry the happy couple will leave for Canton, where the honeymoon is to be spent.

HOPEI AND CHAHAR

Political Council Meeting

Peiping, Yesterday. Under the chairmanship of General Sung Cheh-yuan, the Hopei and Chahar Political Council held its regular meeting yesterday morning. Among the many decisions reached after careful discussion at the meeting, the abolition of the system of having a standing committee in the Council was decided upon. In future the Chairman will be solely in charge of the affairs of the Council.

Colonels Chow Tso-min and Wang Keh-min, both members of the Council, now in Shanghai, have been requested to come to Peiping immediately. — Central News Agency.

A STATUE TO PAVLOV

Monthly Pension For His Widow

Moscow, Yesterday. In connection with the death of the scientist Pavlov the Government has decided to erect a statue to his memory and to grant his wife a monthly pension of 1,000 roubles. Pavlov will be given a State funeral. — Reuter's Bulletin Service.

"Ladies' Night" at Y.M.C.A.

SELDOM has that popular function organised by the Social Committee of the Y.M.C.A., the monthly "Ladies' Night," been such an enjoyable affair as it was a week last Thursday. The programme was very well balanced, while some of the finest artists in the Colony lent themselves to the success of the evening.

Among those who attended were Miss Bobbie Blake, who delighted with some excerpts from "A Country Girl." She wore black trimmed with a deep collar and shoulder capes. Mrs. Nell McGowan was in black crepe with gold trimming and Miss Valerie Morris in saxe-blue lace. A pleasing feature of Miss Sinclair's dress was the loose silver-lined sleeves. Mrs. W. Robinson appeared in lemon taffeta and lace. Mrs. R. Provan in a rich wine velvet. Mrs. J. Kempton in figured black and white and Mrs. H. Scott in dainty beige lace. Mrs. J. Lancaster chose a very dainty powder-blue georgette gown, while Mrs. J. D. Maclean had on a delicate green satin ensemble. Others there included Miss R. Ingram, Miss P. McCaw, Mrs. Barlow, Mrs. G. N. Mitchell and Miss S. Mitchell, who is being married next month. Mrs. F. Short, Mrs. Powell, Mrs. A. McAlpine, Mrs. B. Wylie, Miss H. Wylie and Mrs. Black.

PERSONALIA.

MR. and Mrs. W. Hong Sling, prominent members of the Chinese community, gave a very successful dinner party last Saturday night, when a large number of friends attended, including Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Lo, Mrs. Ruth Kwan of Tientsin, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Lum, Mr. Tony Liang, Miss Anna Tam, Miss Eva Tam, Messrs. Ip, Kui-ying, S. K. Lee, M. C. Tang, Mr. and Mrs. C. Y. Kwan, Mrs. Robert Ho Tung, Jr., and Mr. Ho Sai-cheung.

MR. and Mrs. S. W. Liang gave a dinner party on "Derby Day" in honour of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Lum, who will be leaving the Colony soon after a prolonged visit. Mr. Liang is attached to the Education Department and is a very enthusiastic member of the Chinese Recreation Club, while Mrs. Liang is one of the most popular members of the Chinese younger set.

Miss Glover Well Again

MISS K. Glover's friends and her pupils of the local Women's League of Health and Beauty will be pleased to know that she is quite well again after a slight operation at the War Memorial Nursing Home. While she was away Mrs. Fox took her classes. Mrs. Fox had two years' training with the League of Health and Beauty in London.

Her many friends in Hong Kong will be interested to learn that Mrs. Nellie Tong, wife of Mr. F. S. Tong, the local sharebroker, who has been away in New York for some time, may be soon returning to the Colony. She recently underwent an operation for appendicitis, but has now fully recovered.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Ecclesham, it is understood, will be proceeding home on leave shortly. Their daughter, Peggy, will also be going away with them.

(Continued from Next Column.) the hills, one half of the pack eventually following their line to the River Indus, while the rest of the pack hunted their fox in the hills. Scent was very poor and failed entirely before hounds could get their fox.

The Hunt returned home about half-past five.

FANLING HUNT

Small Field Seen
On Wednesday

SCENT AGAIN VERY POOR

THE Fanling Hounds met at the Stables on Wednesday at 2 o'clock to look for a fox. A very small field turned out, not more than 25 at the most, the majority of whom were men. The only ladies present were Miss Bird, Miss Carter, Mrs. Dowling, Mrs. Fennell, Miss Owen Hughes, Mrs. Rybot, Miss Mary Smalley, Miss Walker and Mrs. Wilson.

Hounds moved off across country by the Gallops to the Frontier Road at Ta Kau Ling Police Station. They crossed the road and went up Sandy Ridge to draw. A pony colt had joined the Hunt by this time, nor was he persuaded to leave it the whole afternoon. There was some very steep going, both up and down hill; and on more than one occasion the entire field had to lead their ponies down the hillsides, the surfaces being very stony and slippery.

Sandy Ridge having been drawn blank, hounds worked across Table Hill to Crown Ridge, where they were rewarded. Scent was picked up on the path and hounds feathered over (Continued at foot of preceding Column.)

Art Club Encouraged

THE Hong Kong Art Club held a well-attended monthly meeting last Monday. The occasion was marked by the presence of H. E. the Governor, who paid an unofficial visit and spent some time inspecting the exhibited works. His Excellency has shown a great interest in the activities of a Club, and to prove how much he approves of it he became a member. It is certainly gratifying to the members of the Club to have His Excellency's support in addition to that of Lady Southern, who has been for several years president of the organisation. During the afternoon a number of new members were welcomed, among whom was Diodado M. Lorenzo, the Filipino artist who intends to hold an exhibition in the Colony soon.

Next Tuesday evening there will be the informal opening of the Club's new studio which will serve as a home to the newly formed section of the Club—The Working Artists Guild. This studio is also available to non-members and is managed by Mr. Luis Chan and Mrs. Alfred N. Macfadyen.

Well-Earned Holiday

BOTH Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Biggar, who are due for a well-deserved holiday, are leaving next week for America. Mr. Biggar is doing some real hard work as manager of the local branch of the Chase Bank. To visit him among his many up-to-date gadgets and a score of telephones, on which he is constantly busy, is quite a revelation. Mrs. Biggar, who is a keen social worker, is one of the busiest committee members of Women's International Club, where her absence will be very much felt. They are going first to New York, and later on to California, where Mr. Biggar's family lives.

(Continued from Last Column.) Mrs. Brown, Mr. P. C. Frost, Miss Blake, Mr. R. S. Spenceley and party, Mr. Portallion, Mr. Grenham, Dr. and Mrs. Dovey, Mr. R. A. Jordan and party, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Hayward, Miss Lawson, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. E. Bishop, Miss Muriel Smith, Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Bartlett, Mr. D. Finlay, Mr. and Mrs. Strong, Miss Iris Woolley, Mr. Packham and Mr. Tyson.

Philharmonic Society Dance

THE Philharmonic Society Dance last week was a great success; in fact it was one of the most successful dances the society has ever had. Mr. H. M. Cockle, the Hon. Treasurer, is to be congratulated on the success of his arrangements. Unfortunately Mr. Cockle was in hospital at the time of the dance, but, being almost well again, he was allowed out for two hours that evening to enjoy something of the affair.

There were a number of novelty dances, including the Leap Year Dance; this, say the ladies, was a great success. And then they ended up with a "gallop" which attracted onlookers from all parts of the Hotel. Various duets from the "Country Girl" were sung by the chorus during the evening, and altogether it was a very jolly affair. Dr. and Mrs. Valentine were there with a party, Mr. and (Continued at foot of Column 5)

ABLE AMAZON WALKS AWAY WITH AUSTRALIAN CHAMPIONS

LOWEST RETURN ON "DOUBLE"

ROSE EVELYN WINS THE SUBS. CLASSIC

MR. ENCARNACAO LEADING JOCKEY

MR. Fatshan's Able Amazon proved beyond all doubt yesterday that she is the best pony seen on the local track when she produced a terrific finishing burst to win by five lengths from Strathroy, which led the field at the Rock by some 10 lengths. Any doubts regarding Able Amazon's fitness can be cast aside as the result of her fine effort yesterday on a soft track.

There were few high dividends — $44.30 for Public Hero No. 1 and $50.00 for Mersey being the highest of the afternoon, while the "daily double" paid the record low figure of $14.00 for King's Lead and Rose Evelyn.

Mr. C. Encarnacao, the Northern jockey, carried off the riding honours with two wins and a second in five starts. Mr. H. C. Pih had two wins and a third in seven races. Mr. Lan and Mr. Eu Tong-sen shared the honours among the owners with a win and a second each.

Fine weather favoured the final day of the Annual Race Meeting at Happy Valley yesterday and as a result there was a very fair attendance, including a number of children, for The Nil Desperandum Stakes, which attracted nine starters in an entry list of 41.

Although the track looked as if it had dried up exceedingly well, it was still a little soft on top, while the grass lawns in front of the stands were still being protected with straw.

Mr. Encarnacao provided the first upset of the afternoon when he brought Public Hero No. 1 home 1½ lengths ahead of Ocean View (Mr. Wong), which took the lead at the Rock and set a very fast pace, in the Nil Desperandum Stakes (first section). The winner was nicely nursed all the way round and just got home in time after a plucky effort in the home straight to pay $44.30. Gold Sovereign (Mr. Roza) disappointed yet again, 778 bets being lost as the result of his failure to produce a finish. Fidelity was fourth and Strathalan fifth.

Cassius Nosed Out
The Nil Desperandum Stakes (second section) resulted in a very close finish between Celebration Time (Mr. Needa), the favourite, and Cassius (Mr. Proulx), the Northern rider's more powerful finish giving him the verdict by a short head after he had been led twice in the home straight. Mr. Li got the best out of Rugby Star to displace Stopwatch, the second favourite, for third place. Satan was left badly at the start and was never anywhere near at any period of the race.

King's Lead Extended
King's Lead (Mr. Marshall) won The Griffins Spring Handicap, but only just, Donovan (Mr. Encarnacao), the pace-maker, giving him a fright all the way up the home straight to be beaten by only a neck. Silversmith made a determined effort at the Rock, but the early start cost him third place, Amberley (Mr. Black) finishing strongly to secure a narrow verdict.

King's Lead zigzagged up the straight and this very nearly cost him the race.

The Dunlin Causes Upset
The Dunlin (Mr. Frost) did well to win The Flemington Plate, despite the fact that he got away to a flying start, Zodiac (Mr. Pih), the second favourite, losing the race owing to the fact that he swerved right across the track when a furlong from home and when in a good position to catch the leader. Violet Queen (Mr. Fung) finished strongly to take second place, a short head ahead of Zodiac, and had the race been a furlong longer she would have won easily. Halcyon, a hot favourite, failed to secure a place, despite a good start—he finished fourth.

The Dunlin paid $28.40 for his win.
Rose Evelyn Unbeaten
Rose Evelyn (Mr. Encarnacao) fulfilled expectations by winning The Professional Cup and Subscription Griffins' Champions, but it was by only three lengths from a determined Wild Cat (Mr.

CIGARETTE-CARD COLLECTING

(To The Editor, "Sunday Herald")

Sir,—It is not uncommon to hear scorn poured on hobbies of all kinds, and in particular upon cigarette-card collecting. Nevertheless, many keen collectors of cigarette-cards, like myself, spend hours on declaiming the beauty, intrinsic interest and informative value of such collections.

Existing facilities to stimulate greater enthusiasm in this connection, however, have hitherto not been very helpful, and I am writing, through the medium of your valuable columns, to solicit greater support from the various local concerns representing cigarette manufacturers.

If I remember correctly, the present series of "Wonders of the Sea," in circulation with Wills' "Gold Flake," was issued about two years ago, if not earlier, and there is still no sign of its being replaced. We earnest collectors are beginning to get tired of seeing so many of them.

Some time last year, a set entitled "Safety First" was issued with Player's "Clipper" cigarettes, but for a few weeks only, and many of my friends were unable to complete their sets of this particular series due to its short period of circulation.

The position as far as Chinese cigarettes are concerned is rather discouraging. In most cases the cards are not numbered and the collector is often left to find out for himself the total number of cards to make up a set. Certain omissions are also deliberately effected, probably to encourage the sale of more packets.

I should like very much to hear what other cigarette-card collectors have to say on the subject.

GOE YAU CHEONG.

BLEEDING GUMS MADE HEALTHY

Loose Teeth Firm and Strong Extraction Avoided

by using —
The essential ingredient in
Gibbs "S.R." Tooth Paste
Tooth Paste is the most active substance known

in combating pyorrhea, gingivitis and similar affections. Gibbs Chemists discovered the secret of combining it with the other necessary ingredients so as to leave its properties unimpaired. Gibbs "S.R." Tooth Paste is the only preparation containing this substance in correct combination and nothing else is so efficacious.

A Dentist writes:—"One case, an acute gingivitis accompanied by intense pain and some pyorrhea, reacted at once to manage treatment with the paste. A chronic case of 14 years duration has distinctly improved and in a typical case of enlarged gingival borders with loss of contact the condition has cleared up."

If your gums are tender, swollen or bleeding, or your teeth loose, start using Gibbs "S.R." Tooth Paste NOW. You will see an amazing improvement in a very few days. Gums will cease to bleed and become firm and healthy. Loose teeth will tighten and become clean and white.

SHING MUN SCHEME CONTINGENT WORKS

It is notified that sealed tenders in triplicate, which should be clearly marked "Tender for a Block of Flats for European Medical Officers," will be received at the Colonial Secretary's Office until noon of Monday, March 16. The work consists of the erection of a block of three flats on existing foundations and contingent works.

As security for the proper performance of the works under this contract the successful tenderer will be required to deposit in cash a sum of $5,000 with the Colonial Treasury.

No work will be permitted on Sundays.

Form of tender, specification and further particulars may be obtained at the office of the Director of Public Works.

Shing Mun Scheme

Sealed tenders in triplicate, which should be clearly marked "Tender for Shing Mun Valley Scheme — Rapid Gravity Filtration Plant, 3rd Section," will be received at the Colonial Secretary's Office until noon of Monday, March 2, for the construction of a reinforced concrete and brickwork Administration House, Quarters and Store, eight reinforced concrete rapid gravity filters and contingent works.

As security for the proper performance of the works under this Contract the successful tenderer will be required to deposit in cash a sum of $5,000 with the Colonial Treasury.

No work will be permitted on Sundays.

Form of tender, specification and further particulars may be obtained at the office of the Director of Public Works.

Concrete Level Crossings

Sealed tenders in triplicate, which should be clearly marked "Tender for Reinforced Concrete Road Level Crossings," will be received at the Colonial Secretary's Office until noon of Monday, March 2, 1936, on behalf of the Kowloon-Canton Railway, British Section.

Drawings may be seen and the specification and full particulars obtained by application to the Railway Head Offices, Kowloon, on the deposit of a fee of $20, which will be refunded on the submission of a bona fide tender together with the return of the specification intact. The deposit receipt must be attached to the tender.

Each tenderer must attach to his tender the schedule of quantities and prices, which shall be fully filled up and shall set forth the items of which such estimate is composed, and shall contain his complete estimate.

The successful tenderer will be required to sign a formal contract in the usual form of Government contracts and to give security for the sum of $200 in cash, to be deposited with the Colonial Treasurer, for the due and faithful performance of the terms of such contract.

Only those contractors who are well versed in railway and road traffic conditions need tender.

GATEWAY TO ETHIOPIA NOW OCCUPIED BY ITALIAN TROOPS

ST. DAVID'S SOCIETY

Welsh Community Celebrate

GATHERING AT GLOUCESTER HOTEL

The eve of St. David's Day was quietly observed by the local Welsh community last night. It was explained in the course of the evening that no official invitations had been issued, but in view of the encouraging message from the Royal Family in regard to unofficial observances it had been decided to hold the annual gathering in modified form.

Members of the local St. David's Society and their friends, totalling in all over 40, met at the Gloucester Hotel for dinner and a social evening. The Loyal Toast, those of Saint David and The Guests were honoured.

Reference was made to the fact that claims on his time had prevented His Majesty during his Princeship from sojourning long in Wales, but Welsh people noted with pride certain Welsh characteristics in King Edward.

Desire For Knowledge

The Welshman had always refused to take his opinion at second-hand. That was why their desire for knowledge of the world had led so many Welsh people so far from the Land of their Fathers. It was the same desire to see things for himself which had led King Edward to tour so many parts of the world, to visit industrial districts in Wales and other countries, and as a result of what he saw there, to do his utmost to improve the conditions of the people there. And although little definite was known of the life of Saint David, there was enough on record to establish the fact that independence of judgment had also been one of his principal characteristics.

Those Present

The toast of Saint David was proposed by Mr. E. R. Price (President) and that of the guests by Mr. D. F. Davies (Vice-President), response being made by the Rev. J. D. MacLean. Members of St. David's Society present included Mr. A. Morris, Mr. Lloyd Davies, Mr. and Mrs. E. Lloyd Jones, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Thomas, Mrs. J. G. Hooper, Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Price, Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Jones, Capt. and Mrs. Evans, Capt. E. Jones, Mr. D. J. Williams, Mr. H. Hall (Hon. Secretary) and Mrs. Hall.

Welsh and other songs were sung, soloists being Mrs. Hooper, Mr. I. Williams, Mr. G. Saunders and Mr. V. C. Labrum. Mr. G. E. Longyear was the accompanist.

LOCAL BOARD OF EDUCATION

Meeting Held On Friday

The 101st Meeting of the Board of Education was held on Friday last. The Members present were:—Director of Education, Mr. G. R. Sayer, B.A., Chairman; Mr. T. Rowell, B.Sc.; Mr. A. J. Ph. D., Sir W. W. Hornell, Kt., C. I. E., M.A., LL.D., Captain G. W. P. Kilm, A.E.C., Mr. Li Tze Fong, Rev. F. Short, and Mr. E. J. Edwards, Secretary.

The Minutes of the 100th Meeting, which had been circulated and approved, were brought up and confirmed.

The Board considered a Memorandum by the Chairman including reductions in the Capitation Grants payable in 1937, which it was proposed to effect in the Estimates of the Department, in view of the present financial stringency.

The Board considered a letter from the Correspondent of a Grant-in-Aid School renewing his request for a Capitation Grant in respect of his upper classes.

SEVENTY ATTEND K.C.C. LEAP YEAR DANCE

About 70 people attended the Leap Year Dance at the Kowloon Cricket Club last night, when Nura Kanis' dance band was in attendance.

Rescue workers, labouring in below zero temperature, dragged four bodies and 32 injured passengers from this wreck of the Read-Inc's crack "Williamsporter," which plunged from a Suanichanna River bridge into the canal below at Sunbury, Pasadena.

POLITICS IN SPAIN

RELATIONS WITH RUSSIA

"SUNDAY HERALD" SPECIAL

The leaning of the Spanish Left wingers to the extreme Left is daily becoming more obvious. According to the paper El Liberal the new Spanish Foreign Minister, Sonor Barcia, stated to some members of the "Group of Friends of Soviet Russia," that he as well as the Government take the view that diplomatic and economic relations with the Soviet Union should be resumed at the earliest moment possible, adding that the question would probably be settled within the next few days.

All Madrid offices of the Spanish Fascist Party, the "Falanga Española," have been closed by the police, under orders from the Government.

The Municipal Council of Seville has elected three Communists as District Mayors. The Communist Town Councillor delivered a speech from the balcony of the town hall, in the course of which it was stated that the "revolution begun on February 18 will be consistently carried on."—Trans-Ocean Service.

AT THE CHINA FLEET CLUB

R.E.O.C.A. Gala Great Success

The committee responsible for the arrangements for the R. E. Old Comrades Association's Leap Year Ball have good reason to congratulate themselves in that the function turned out to be an unqualified success.

As in the case with all the dances arranged by this body, last night's affair was held in the China Fleet Club and once again the dance band of the Royal Ulster Rifles supplied the music. Over 300 people were present and everyone had an enjoyable time, the "Paul Jones" proving to be the most popular numbers of the evening.

During the evening a raffle for a box of chocolates was held, the winning ticket being held by Mr. Nesbitt.

LEAP YEAR "SOCIAL"

Fellowship Of Youth Function

The Fellowship of Youth celebrated the Leap Year with a "social" last night at the St. Andrew's Church Hall, when over 40 persons attended. A very enjoyable Victorian comedy play entitled "Alicia Disposes" was given by the younger members, the following taking the principal parts: Miss Marjorie Smith (Mrs. Rowley), Miss Betty Jeffreys, Miss Joan Parkinson and Miss Peggy Jeffreys (Mrs. Rowley's daughters), Master Pat Burn (George Morriane), and Miss Nancy Banker (Jane, Mrs. Rowley's maid).

Messrs. J. J. Ferguson (Accordion solos) and J. O. M. Grenham also rendered items which were thoroughly enjoyed. Among those who helped to make the social a success were Miss Bonny Robinson, Mr. Rupert Baldwin and Mr. and Mrs. Jeffreys.

120 REBELS SURRENDER
Later: A Rengo message from Tokyo states that 120 rebels surrendered immediately after the eviction order at 5.30 a.m. and returned to their barracks. Other groups followed until at 11.30 only a few remained in occupation of the two buildings. At present it is not known whether the surrender is unconditional.

GEN. KASHI'S DECISION
Later: A Rengo message from Tokyo states that General Kashi announced that the officers and men participating in the coup would be treated as mutineers. An observation balloon hovered over the rebels all the morning, bearing a long streamer urging them to surrender.

NO BLOODSHED
Tokyo: Later: Practically all the mutineers have surrendered, without a shot being fired.

Shanghai, Later: A Rengo message from Tokyo states that the suppression of the uprising was announced in a communique issued by General Kashi at 12.50 p.m.

ALL SURRENDER
Later: Another Rengo message announces that all the rebels had surrendered and been disarmed at 1 p.m.

A communique declares the desire of the authorities to avoid bloodshed, which might possibly be brought about by forceful measures, as a reason for the delay in the suppression of the uprising. It adds that they were dealing with a situation which might have entailed alarming consequences. If it were mishandled by the army leader, who manifested paternal patience and dignified courage, while the rebels behaved in an orderly manner and refrained from an exodus from the area under their control.

SIR R. HO TUNG DECORATED

At the conclusion of dinner Admiral Esteva, who was wearing the insignia of the Grand Cross of the Order of the Dragon of Annam, addressing Sir Robert, expressed his great pleasure at being chosen, at the personal wish of the Emperor of Annam, to invest Sir Robert with the Commandership of the Order. Sir Robert's great services to China and to humanity were well known to all of them and had received recognition in many countries already, including France, which had bestowed upon him the Legion d'Honneur.

The Admiral then placed on Sir Robert's neck the collar and jewel of the Order.

M. Laurquin, following the investiture, in a felicitous little speech proposed the health of the Grand Old Man of Hong Kong, the toast being drunk with enthusiasm.

Sir Robert then replied, expressing his great sense of the high honour which had been done him and thanking the Admiral for having so graciously performed the ceremony of investiture.

This is the ninth foreign decoration which Sir Robert is now entitled to wear.

H.M. THE KING'S BROADCAST

To Be Relayed To Many Countries

GREAT INTEREST SHOWN

London, Yesterday.

The King's first broadcast since his accession to the throne will take place from the studio at Broadcasting House at 4 p.m. to-morrow.

Listeners all over the world will be able to hear the speech, and among the foreign countries which have sought and obtained permission to relay it are America, Argentina, Brazil, Austria, Hungary, Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Switzerland and Poland. In some of these countries land-lines will be employed to link the local broadcasting stations with London. Elsewhere the speech as transmitted on the Empire short waves will be picked up and re-diffused.

Most people in Britain will hear the speech in their own homes, but for the convenience of patrons of Sunday afternoon concerts loud-speakers have been placed in large theatres and halls.

Although this is the King's first broadcast since his accession his voice is familiar to British listeners, for as Prince of Wales speeches by him at public functions have frequently been heard.—British Wireless Service.

Local Reception
Daventry broadcasts of His Majesty's speech will be as follows, all time being Hong Kong times:

GSD, 11.750 k.c., 25.55 metres
GSG, 17.700 k.c., 16.88 metres
GSF, 15.140 k.c., 19.83 metres
11.80 p.m. Music, with frequent announcements.
12 a.m. approx. King's Speech.

UNITY AMONG LEADERS

Canton And Nanking To Co-Operate?

POSSIBLE SEQUEL TO TOKYO COUP D'ETAT

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Canton, Yesterday.
The Tokyo coup d'etat is likely to bring about a strong Japanese policy towards China and unity among Chinese people to resist Japanese aggression, a prominent Kuomintang leader predicted in an interview today.

"The foreign menace may cement more closely Canton's ties with Nanking," the Kuomintang leader observed. "However, Nanking has to show clearly that it will not go on submitting to Japanese pressure. The Tokyo murders have aroused the suspicion of the world that Japan will shortly embark upon a more aggressive continental policy."

The Canton Daily Sun printed this morning a Tokyo dispatch quoting the spokesman of the Japanese Foreign Office as saying that the recent outrages will not affect Japan's foreign policy, as the causes of the assassination are due to internal questions. The same paper, however, believed that the statement is "purely diplomatic."

NO RESISTANCE ENCOUNTERED

DECISIVE PHASE IN CAMPAIGN

ABYSSINIAN MORALE SHAKEN

Makale, Yesterday.

On the eve of the 40th anniversary of the Italian defeat at Adowa the Italian flag flies again on the 9,000-ft. high summit of Amba Alagi, called the Gateway to Ethiopia. The flag, one recently sent from Italy, is to be planted at Alagi by the father of the officer who died when leading a battalion of Askaris in 1896.

While the first army corps of Black-Shirts occupied Amba itself the Sannuda division took Col Falaga to the east on the edge of the Ethiopian plateau, while an Alpine division reached Col Tagora to the west.

The Italians now hold the whole of the 20-mile ridge constituting the most formidable obstacle to the invasion of Abyssinia from the north. No resistance was encountered anywhere during the whole occupation, which called for many mountaineering feats. It had been expected that the left wing would await the complete clearing up of the Tembien and Takazze regions before advancing, but the approach of the Negus with a fresh army from the south decided the general staff to strike quickly.

Meanwhile Italian planes are bombing the village where the Negus is staying and harrying his troops, whose spirits are believed to have been chastened by the sight of the remnants of Ras Mulugheta's army fleeing in the south.

The Italian success, coupled with the probable drive on other sectors, is felt to have decided the whole campaign in favour of the Italians. The capture of Alagi is of threefold importance—historically for Italy, politically as throwing open the time-honoured barrier to the south with the consequent effect on the Abyssinian morale and their allegiance to the Negus, and thirdly, the military objective is easy to hold, commanding all the approaches to Tigre and Tembien from the south.—Reuter.

ANNIVERSARY AT HEIDELBERG

Birmingham Refuses To Participate

STUDENTS MAKE PROTEST

"SUNDAY HERALD" SPECIAL

Heidelberg, Yesterday.

Students from 18 foreign countries studying at Heidelberg University signed a protest declaration against the action of Birmingham University in declining participation at the 550 years' anniversary of Heidelberg University, which is to take place this year.

The declaration states: "At a period and under conditions when nothing should be missed in the interests of European peace to further the friendly relations between the nations and explore the avenues of mutual understanding, Birmingham University saw fit to decline the invitation to this year's festivities on the occasion of Heidelberg University's 550 anniversary, on account of the political conditions in the Third Reich. This attitude is all the more incomprehensible, since the political conditions in other countries have at no time caused Germany to refuse to take part in the sorrows and joys of her neighbours."

Comradeship

The declaration goes on to say that the Association of Students at Heidelberg University know only of one political principle applicable to foreign students: Comradeship, this being amply substantiated by the fact that those Englishmen who object to the decision of the University of Birmingham have spent many weeks in Germany and Heidelberg, gaining impressions that make Birmingham University's decision appear as a bad service to the peace of the world and the friendly relations between neighbours.—Trans-Ocean Service.

CHINA
GREATER FREEDOM OF
OLDEN DAYS
IDEA OF WOMEN'S INFERIORITY
OF LATER GROWTH

(By PHYLLIS JUBY)

The women of ancient China were wooed and won at the Spring and Autumn festivals, and the Odes of the Shih King, telling of that time, breathe the opposition of the sexes. Woman was to be won and it was her resistance that showed her value. It was all a lover's debate. The lady sang from the sunny side and the girls answered from the shade. The intense emotions gave birth to a rhythmic expression and song answered song. Rules of tradition compelled the girl to refuse, but the lad established his ascendancy by making use of classic lines of persuasion, by skillfully singing in proverbs. Her love goes to him who has the deepest feeling for common wisdom.

But, though they opposed each other, the sexes mingled and it is this mingling that the ancient Odes depict with simple directness. Quite artlessly they portray the loves of the country, how the boys and girls became acquainted with each other in the fields. The young people played their part in a contest, improvising lines in rhythm with their gestures. They enjoyed themselves eating and drinking together, presenting love-tokens and declaring their faithfulness. It was only as society changed its form that the opposition between the sexes seemed to become determined by a difference of value between man and woman.

Men frequently were invited to court, women were excluded. More and more they came to live in seclusion, making the house their main concern. Cut off from public life it was gradually felt that woman was too impure to be allowed to share in it. The seclusion became stricter, until in one of the Odes we read:—

"To woman's tongue let length be given,
And step by step to harm it lead,
Disorder does not come from Heaven,
'Tis woman's tongue disorder breeds...
Public affairs to wife and maid
Must not silk-worms and looms displace."

The nature of woman came to be thought fundamentally pernicious and many were the Odes of the court that sang of virtues that might be.

"Modest and virtuous, loth herself to show,

Where could be found, to share our prince's state
So fair, so virtuous, and so fit a mate?"

There was the beauty of the land—however elegant, graceful and majestic she might be, with rare jewels and creasins, cloud-like hair and high forehead shining pure and white, there virtue was wanting.

"But, lady, vain is all your grand array,
No claim to it can you, in virtue wanting, lay."

But there are songs, echoes of earlier days, that introduce us to customs that existed before the classic moral teachings, songs improvised in the course of ritual dances. Songs that represent girls eagerly urging youths to "ask for" them, the maid sharing the chariot with her lover, and lovers known to part at dawn.

They meet, these girls and boys,

In the valleys along the mulberry walks, or beside the springs and rivers. Clouds of girls adorned with care, their beauty admired.

"Like blades of white grass were her fingers fine,
Her skin like purest ointment hard-congealed,

Her neck like larvae on the tree which shine

So long and white; her opening lips revealed

Her even teeth behind their screen concealed,

Like melon seeds. Her front, cloud-square,

Displayed her eyebrows curved upon its field

Like horns of silkworm moth; and dimples rare,

With dark and lucid eyes, showed faces beyond compare."

Or the girl is said to be "like a white flower" or "like a diamond."

The girls and their lovers were joined at the betrothal festivals and marriage songs were sung.

"The peach tree, young and beautiful,

How profuse its flowers!

The girl is about to be married;
It is right that they should be wife and husband."

The idea of marriage is associated with the fine growth of a young peach tree; young and already full of vigour. The girl is beautiful and at the perfect age, symbolised by the flowering peach tree. After her marriage she gathers in the fields, goes home to cook in her pans and tripods, and then enters the sacred chamber to perform the sacrificial offerings. In the fields she sings as she gathers. Desiring children, she sings the song of the plantains, for plantains are plants of fertility.

"We gather and gather the plantains,
Come gather them anyhow,
Yes, gather and gather the plantains,
And here we have got them now.
We gather and gather the plantains,
The seeds in our skirts are placed
Yes, gather and gather the plantains,
Hol' safe in the girdled waist."
In quieter hours man and woman come together to "respond in song" and "hold converse wise and pleasant."

slopes of Victoria Peak, Pokfulam and Aberdeen Valley.

A flock of Chinese Greenfinches, of about 50 birds, was seen in Pokfulam on the afternoon of Friday 21. This species is resident in the Colony in limited numbers in Kowloon, where it nests in the banyan trees along Nathan Road; it is rarely seen on Hong Kong Island. It is also migratory, the numbers being augmented by spring migrants from the south.

The first roses, Rosa luciae (pink and white, sweet scented), are now coming into flower and also the beautiful clear yellow "Hong Kong Laburnum" Caesalpinia naga, both seen in the Shatin district. Hibiscus tiliaceus, the sea-shore Hibiscus, is also beginning to flower freely, as are also the cultivated varieties in our gardens.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

CARD SENSE?

(By Lieut.-Col. H. M. BEASLEY)

WHAT is this Card Sense which many good players are supposed to possess?

If I were asked for a definition I would say that it was composed of (a) ability to draw correct inferences from the bidding, and (b) to estimate accurately the trick-taking power of the combined hands, and (c) possession of a memory which will enable you to count accurately during the play the fall of the cards in each suit.

All these important factors involve counting, and when any player tells me he does not bother about counting, which is an absolutely essential feature both in the bidding and in the play of a hand, then I must admit I am at a loss to know how he expects to succeed.

All well-known systems introduce some method of counting. For example the Approach Forcing Tactics of Mr. Culbertson deal with quick tricks—honour tricks—and a distributional count for playing tricks; that is to say, valuation of singletons, doubletons, and Trump support in Dummy, and the value of long cards in side suits, etc.

The Losing Trick count advocated by Mr. Courtenay and Colonel Walshe determines the value of a hand by counting the number of losing tricks—not the winning tricks.

In my system, I count winning tricks, but I give each trick a numerical value of three points.

If you examine these three systems carefully you will find that basically there is very little variation in the assessment of honours and distributional value.

Bidding systems may vary considerably and their inventors may have their own opinions as to whether a Two-bid in a suit should indicate a very strong hand, and demand that the bidding should not cease until a Game call has been reached, or whether a Two-bid in a suit should merely indicate a hand which will produce six to seven tricks, without any proviso that the partner is compelled to keep the bidding open on a trickless hand.

There are many other points on which systems differ, nevertheless they all involve counting in some form or other.

There are some mentalities which like to think in figures; there are others that prefer to think in quick tricks—honour tricks—etc.

The point with which most Contract players are chiefly concerned is the relative accuracy of these various methods of valuation.

As Mr. Culbertson aptly sums up the situation—"Counting is the mental enemy of guessing, and the more precise the count the easier it is to dispel the darkness of the unknown."

I maintain that the count which I have advocated for assessing the value of the combined hands is simple and will prove accurate in the large majority of cases.

When does the counting begin? It commences immediately the first bid is made, and whether it is you and your partner or only your two opponents who indulge in the bidding, you must endeavour to form a picture not only of the trick-taking value but of the distribution of the entire hands.

For example, if your opponents East and West indulge in the following bidding:—

West	East
One Heart	Two Diamonds
Two Spades	Three Spades
Four Hearts	No bid

HONG KONG AND THE NEW TERRITORIES. — No. 196.

SATURDAY afternoon, February 22, was a very pleasant afternoon in the New Territories, whatever it may have been like in Hong Kong. It was fine, a trifle too warm perhaps for February, and the sun shone for a part of the time. We walked from Shatin along the south-eastern shore of Tide Cove to the valley which leads to Turrot Pass. We explored the woods in the vicinity of the villages of Tai Lam Liu and Wong Nel Tau. (War Office Map No. 15 25-65). The walk along the shore of Tide Cove with the sea on our left, going, and paddy and cultivated fields on our right gave opportunities for a variety of birds. In all we saw 33 species, which was not a bad effort for the district.

Shore birds included a flock of Little Egrets, two Fokien Pond Herons, a Black-capped Kingfisher (both White-breasted and Little were also seen) and a Collared Crow. Birds of the cultivated fields included the common species of Bulbul, Wagtail, Pipit, Magpie and Mynah. Birds of the valley included a flock of Crested Buntings, Grey-headed Bunting, Stonechat, Daurian Redstart and Japanese Robin Flycatcher.

Swallows And Robins

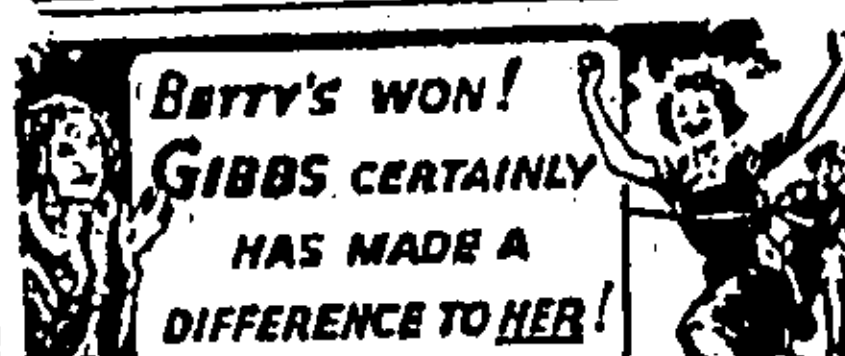

The first swallows of the year were noticed and others were seen on the next day in Pokfulam. This is the first summer visitor observed this year. No migratory thrushes were seen, though two of the resident Violet Whistling Thrush were disturbed. In a wood by a stream near the village of Wong Nel Tau we looked carefully for robins. So far we have only seen them in the Ping Shan district at the west side of the Colony. The locality seemed ideal, a small wood near a village, tall trees, clumps of bamboos, undergrowth, not too dense, and a torrent close by. We advanced up the stream from rock to rock, the noise of the falling water masking the sounds of our movements.

I suggested that the locality seemed ideal for robins and within a minute one was seen. It was perched on a stone in the stream and was facing us; the patches of orange chestnut on the sides of the breast were very prominent.

"Blue-tail," I whispered. The bird kindly flew into a bush and turned its back on us, showing very clearly the blue tail and brownish upper parts characteristic of the female Blue-tail. One, two, or more other robins were seen in the immediate vicinity but they were very shy and we failed to get more than glimpses insufficient to determine the species. Probably they were also Blue-tails, but one may have been a female Ruby Throat. The definite identification of a Blue-tailed Robin in this district is of value, for if in this district as well as in the Ping Shan district why not also elsewhere in the Colony?

White-headed Bulbuls

A friend has told me that she has seen White-headed Black Bulbuls at the top of the Aberdeen Valley near Wong Nel Chong gap. They have been seen in the district since the end of January. At first only the completely black birds were seen, but one Sunday morning four White-headed individuals were noticed perched on a single bough in a pine tree. Eastern Rose-ringed Paroquets—the familiar green long-tailed parrot—have also been seen in the

THE SNAKE DIED

THIS IS A DAILY FEATURE IN "THE CHINA MAIL"

EXPLANATION OF TO-DAY'S CARTOON

The Golden Baby

ON JANUARY 2, 1868, General Napier landed in Zula, (in what is now Italian Eritrea) leading a British Expeditionary force against Emperor Theodore of Ethiopia. The march to Magdala where Theodore resided, 420 miles away, began on January 25th. On April 10th Magdala was reached and the Abyssinian forces defeated. Magdala was stormed and razed. Peace was concluded and the last British soldier left Africa on June 18, 1868.

Before the walls of Magdala the British found an abandoned infant of unknown parentage. General Napier took pity on the foundling, adopted him and took him back with him to India and England. That baby, given the name of Workenah (O my golden baby) received an excellent education, became a famous physician, married an Ethiopian princess, and is now His Excellency Doctor Workenah Martin, Ethiopian Minister and Envoy Extraordinary to the Court of London.

And The Snake Died

When a rattlesnake bites a man and then dies from the bite—that's unusual. Yet that is what happened when a rattler bit Tex McDowell of Hayden, Colorado, last summer. Hayden has been collecting rattlers and extracting the venom, and at present has about forty good specimens. One day he grabbed a big one, but got it too far behind the head and the snake sank his fangs into Hayden's hand. The hand, however, did not even swell up, and that same evening the snake died.

Bridge Notes

and you, South, hold the following hand:—

S. A x x
H. x x
D. K x x x
C. K x x x

you can infer from the bidding: That as West has begun by bidding Hearts and subsequently bid Spades, he probably holds Five Hearts and Four Spades, or Five Hearts and Five Spades, but that his Hearts are stronger than his Spades.

Furthermore, as East has bid Diamonds, he probably holds Five Diamonds, and as he has subsequently shown a preference for Hearts, he probably holds Three Hearts and Two Spades. Therefore West's hand may consist of Five Hearts and Five Spades, Two Clubs and One Diamond, and East's hand probably consists of Two Spades, Three Hearts, Five Diamonds and Three Clubs.

Whether your estimate of the distribution of the hand is correct or not will be made patent as soon as Dummy's hand is placed on the table.

When you have made any necessary adjustments in your estimate of the distribution of the hands, it is then possible for you to count fairly accurately the distribution of your partner's hand, and the whole deal may be reconstructed as under:

S. J x x x
H. x x x
D. J x x
C. x x x
S. K Q x x x
H. A Q J x x
D. x x x
C. A x x

S. A x x
H. K x
D. K x x x
C. K x x x

After you have seen the opening lead you must begin again and endeavour to determine the distribution of the suit.

Ask yourself the following questions:

- Does the leader hold a certain combination of Honours?
- Has he led from a short suit? or
- Has he led from a long suit?

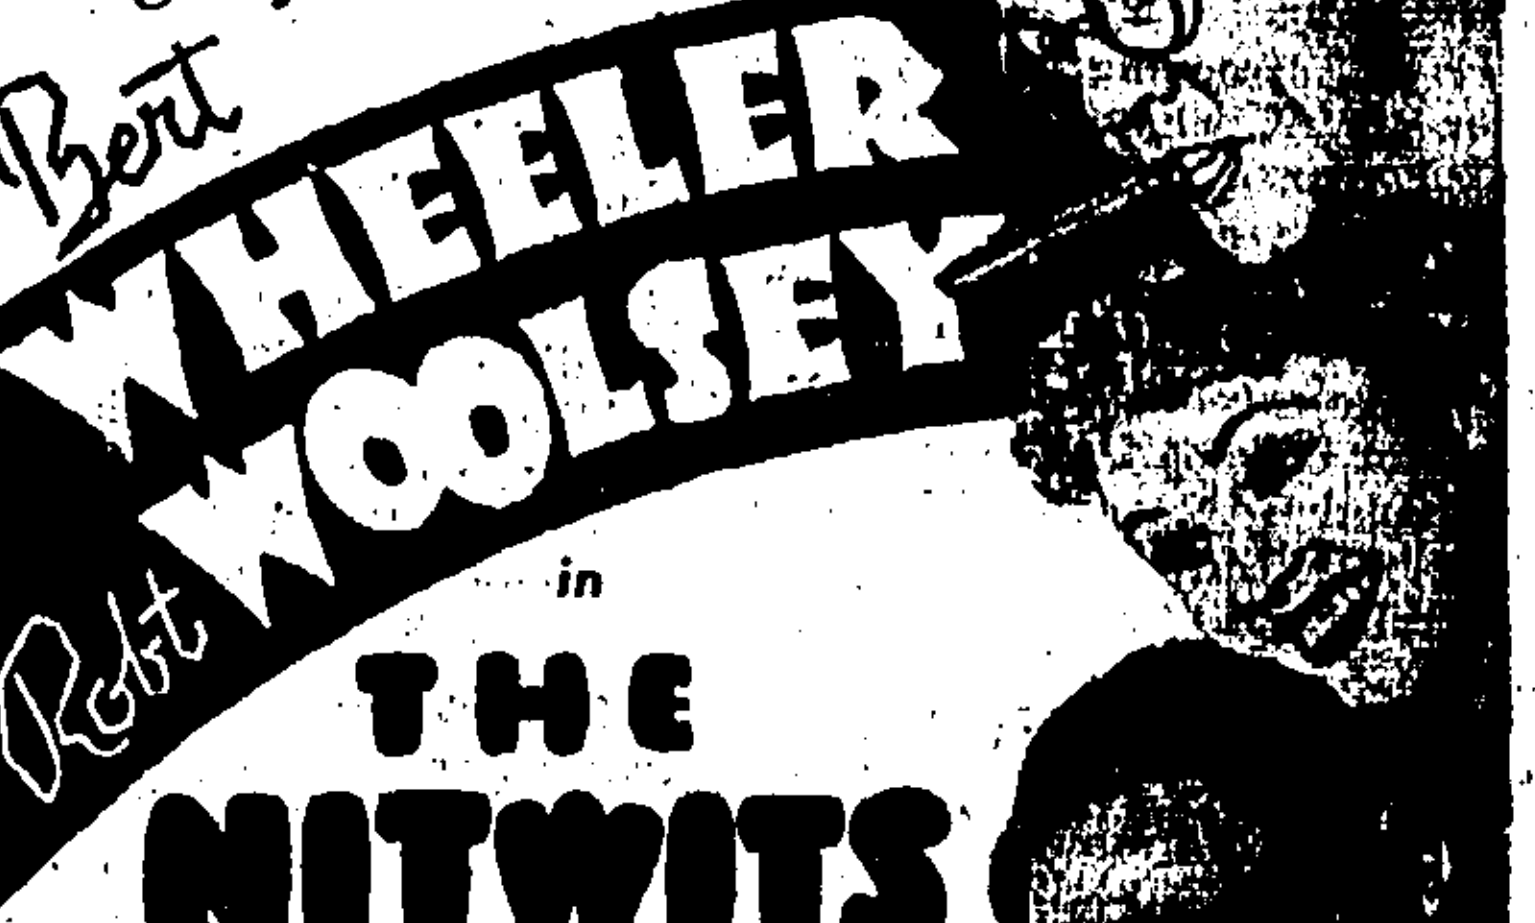

The fall of the cards to the first trick will probably enlighten you as to the distribution of the suit. Subsequently, you must count carefully the cards played to each trick.

If you fail to do this, you will certainly not be in a position to take advantage of "Squeeze" and "End plays," which may be the only method of play which will enable you to fulfil your contract.

COMMUNISTS IN SZECHUEN

CAPITAL IN DANGER OF INVASION

200 MILITIA SLAUGHTERED

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Canton, Yesterday.

Communists under Hsiao Keh and Ho Lung have captured Koolin in Southern Szechuen, and 200 militia who attempted to put up a resistance were slaughtered by the Reds, according to a Kweiyang report received here last night.

Chengtu, provincial capital of Szechuen, is in danger of another Communist invasion. About 12,000 desperadoes led by Hsu Hsiang-chien and Chu Teh are lurking in the mountainous regions east of Maokung and are advancing towards Tapa, which is about 18 miles west of Chengtu.

HARDSTAFF PLAYS LIVELY

Kingsland, Yesterday.
The third unofficial cricket Test match between New Zealand and the M.C.C. tourists, which commenced here on Friday, was continued yesterday when the New Zealanders were dismissed for the addition of only six runs to their overnight total of 362. They had occupied the wicket for 325 minutes. The most successful bowlers for the tourists were Baxter (4 for 86) and Sims (4 for 92), while I. B. Cromb (72) and Elms (99) were the chief scorers for the home team.

The M.C.C. had scored 289 for 6 in reply when stumps were drawn. Barber scored 93 in a sturdy innings which lasted 178 minutes and which included only five boundaries. Together with Parks he added 107 for the second wicket, the latter claiming 65 of the runs scored during that time. Hardstaff treated the spectators to some lively cricket by scoring 57 runs (undefeated) and brought off some very nice drives, hooks and leg-glances.—Reuter.

FINGLETON IN FINE FORM

117 Not Out In The Final Test

Durban, Yesterday.
The fifth and final Test cricket match between South Africa and Australia was continued here today when the home team, resuming their innings, took their overnight total of 199 for 8 to 222 runs. K. Viljoen being top-scorer with 56 runs. It will be remembered that on the previous day A. D. Nouras scored a half-century. C. V. Grimmett (7 for 100) was the most successful bowler for the Australians.

Australia started in fine style and at the close were 289 for 2, J. Fingleton being undefeated with 117 to his credit, while W. A. Brown had scored 84. Stumps were drawn one hour before time due to bad light.—Reuter.

General Chiang Kai-shek, Chairman of the Military Affairs Commission, anticipated the Communist scheme a week ago and has ordered two divisions to defend Tapa, the gateway to Chengtu. Bombing planes from Chengtu resumed their air raids yesterday, although the marksmanship was very bad owing to the rugged and mountainous area.

Hsu Hsiang-chien and Chu Teh are counting on support from Hsiao Keh and Ho Lung, who are coming up from the South. They march only at night in order to escape detection and bombardment by Government planes.

Nanking, Yesterday.
The British R.A.F. flying-boats, led by Commodore Smith on a goodwill mission to China and Japan from Singapore, will come to Nanking by the morning of March 2, according to information from the Walchiaoou today.

The planes will not proceed to Japan as previously scheduled, owing to the present disturbed political situation in that country. They are expected to stay in Nanking for only half a day, returning to Shanghai the same afternoon on their way back to Singapore.—Central News Agency.

anean weekly. At present the machines used are land planes, but the new boats will be land and water machines and will fly by night and day, only stopping for fuel and necessities, and to change the pilots and crews.

The new planes will have two decks, the lower deck containing three passenger cabins with two layers of beds and a passage from the first cabin to the rear cabin, in the end of which will be wash-rooms and a kitchen. The upper deck will contain the pilot's control room, the wireless room and the luggage and mail room. The engines will develop 1,000 h.p., and the weight of the machines will be 18 tons. They will have a speed of 170 miles an hour.—Reuter's Bulletin Service.

PEACEFUL REVISION OF TREATIES IMPORTANT LECTURE GIVEN IN GERMAN ACADEMY

Berlin, Yesterday.

The "peaceful revision of treaties and the rights of dissatisfied countries" formed the theme of a lecture by Dr. Arnold Toynbee, Director of Studies in the Royal Institute for International Affairs in London and Professor of the University of London, on the occasion of the tenth plenary meeting of the Academy of German Law, which took place here yesterday under the chairmanship of Reich Minister, Dr. Frank.

The distinguished audience included the Foreign Minister, Baron von Neurath, and several members of the diplomatic corps.

Dr. Toynbee took as his starting point the two aspects under which law can be envisaged: as "repressive law," which aims at preventing or paralysing any attempt to change existing conditions by force; and as "constructive law," which provides for a peaceful modification of the status quo by legal, constitutional methods.

According to the speaker, repressive law in its application in international relations assumes the form of "collective security," and constructive law the form of "peaceful change," whereby States adhere to the repressive law, while the preferences of the dissatisfied States naturally go to the constructive law. Great Britain, so the speaker affirmed, belongs to the first category, and Germany to the second.

CONCLUSIONS DRAWN

The speaker proceeded to draw from these premises the conclusion that the common aim of Great Britain and Germany ought to be to draw the safest balance between the two systems. This again implies that both nations must be prepared to make concessions. Britain as well as the other satisfied countries, such as France and the United States, Canada and Russia, should endeavour to give satisfaction to the demands of peaceful revision put forward by Bulgaria, as well as other dissatisfied countries for the existing law does not provide for the possibility of peaceful modification, and then later violent upheaval will become inevitable.

Turning to the question of raw materials, Dr. Toynbee declared that since Germany's requirements in respect of them far exceeded the productive capability of the former German colonies, that problem, insofar as Germany is concerned, would not be solved even if the entire former German colonies were returned to her. Over and beyond that problem, however, the speaker said, Germany feels herself injured because she is being denied the right to a form of property enjoyed by the other states.

POINT OF HONOUR

"In these circumstances I can easily understand that you consider it a point of honour that at least some of your former colonies be restored to you. Nevertheless, this question of returning the German colonies likewise raises the question of honour for Britain, who regards herself as the trustee for the welfare of the native populations living under British rule." The Professor emphasised that he believed it possible that the points of view of Germany and Britain might be reconciled in the matter of national honour, and concluded by making various proposals tending to guarantee the rights of the natives in Africa.—Trans-Ocean Service.

Mongolian Troops At Wuchan Hsien

Nanking, Yesterday.

The detachments of Mongolian troops who left Pailingmiao early last week have now gathered at Wuchwan Hsien, about 80 kilometers north of Kweihua, according to a telegraphic message from General Fu Tso-yl, Chairman of the Suiyuan Provincial Government, to the central authorities today.

Officials had been sent by the Suiyuan Provincial administration to Wuchwan Hsien to investigate the actual conditions there, the message further stated.—Central News Agency.
